coffee, and fresh baked cookies and pastries straight from the Grand Hotel ovens are complimentary.

Grand's High Tea Popular With Guests

"In keeping with the tradition of the fine established resorts of the world, the Grand Hotel has begun offering High Tea at 4 p.m. daily. We invite you, our valued members and guests, to join us often for this hour of socializing."

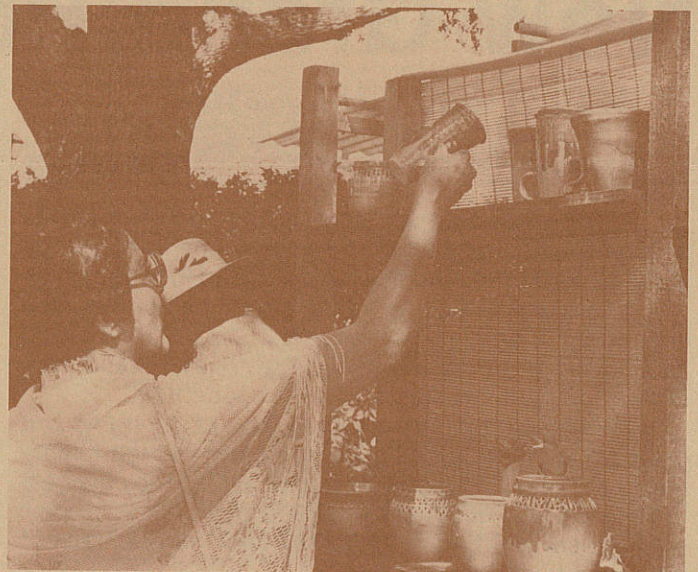

That is the way the printed invitation read when William Scott, general manager, instituted the popular social hour recently.

Thus began a delightful daily hour around the fireplace and the lobby of tea—there is coffee, too — and the delicious fresh baked cookies and pastries created by the Grand Hotel's own bakers.

A selection of two or more tasty treats is provided with the steaming hot tea. Adding to the taste and aroma of the tea are such well done little items as the fresh cut lemon and sweet cream.

A beautiful antique tea service set, brought up from the Grand Hotel silver collection, is the center of the attractively set table.

Guests are enjoying the new activity. They are stopping by when returning from golf or shopping and beginning to come down just for tea.

Hotel guests and day visitors enjoyed more than 50 exhibits on the grounds of the hotel this past fall. The second annual Grand Festival of Art was sponsored by the hotel and the Eastern Shore Art Association. Various categories of work were exhibited with much of it offered for sale by the artists. The Grand Hotel offered purchase awards of $2,000.
