Ferry House saved in the nick of time

The 1859 Ferry House at Ebey's Landing, near collapse, has been saved by historic preservation scholars.

It is a miracle the Ferry House still stands. Buffeted by storms, enlarged by careless carpenters, neglected and, at last, abandoned, this 1859 structure teetered on the doorstep of its own demise. Enter the National Park Service and the Pacific Northwest Preservation Field School who are, in the very nick of time, rescuing the Ferry House from ruin.

Ancestral Walls by Sally Hayton-Keeva

Old buildings are sometimes the best — sometimes the only — eyewitnesses to their own history, exposing the past to the present by the testimony of their walls. Architectural elements like staircases and porches leave evidence behind when they disappear, and restoration experts search for these clues to learn what the building looked like during its evolution through time.

The Ferry House is now giving up its secrets to specialists and students who have gathered to begin the structure's restoration by the Pacific Northwest Field School, conducted by the University of Oregon under the watchful eye and guidance of Donald Peting. Professor of Architecture and Historical Preservation, Peting has brought a lifetime of devotion and experience to the Ferry House.

Asked why he has dedicated so much of his life to architectural preservation, Professor Peting said, "It's important because the history of a culture is embedded in old buildings. When they disappear, we don't know what the people did, how they lived. We lose a sense of our culture. Architects tend to look forward to their next project," he went on, "but looking back at old buildings teaches us what worked and what didn't work. For example, people in the 19th century had a more sensitive feel for proportion, composition and scale; for classical design."

Peting loves to teach the Field School (this is his 8th) because so many students are inspired to become preservation advocates.

Students may choose particular elements of restoration to study, such as log construction or archaeology, and each week of the five-week course offers a different aspect of the preservation and restoration process. In addition, a series of free lectures are open to students and the public on such topics as 19th Century Architecture, Chinese Settlement and Farming on Ebey's Prairie and Orientation to Coastal Fortifications.

Last week the first group of students gathered to study the archaeology of the Ferry House site. This is to ensure that nothing of historical or prehistoric importance is disturbed during restoration. Test pits were dug at selected places around the building and resulting finds have included fire-cracked rocks and remnants of cooked camas bulbs, a Civil War bayonet, and a silver charm shaped like a sailboat. A stone tool was found dating from the late Holocene period, about 8,000 years ago.

Experts and their students have discovered where the original door was, how the Ferry House was added to twice during its heyday, and that sometime in its history it was painted white. It was comparatively simple for these restoration Sherlocks to point to changes made by Hollywood during the filming of the movie, "Snow Falling on Cedars." Though the fresh wallpaper was easy to spot, the very authentic-looking front door must have been a little more difficult!

The Ferry House was constructed in three phases. The first phase consisted of a rectangle built in the "box construction" method, with planks running all the way from the sill to the ceiling. These planks were then sheathed in siding. The second phase, built about five years later, extended

Voters to decide EMS levy Sept. 17

Whidbey Island voters will decide Sept. 17 whether to continue the island's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Levy.

Four years ago, Whidbey residents voted to increase the emergency medical services levy by 12 cents. The total levy amount of 37 cents was valid for a four-year period. Effective Jan. 1, 2003 the levy supporting ambulance and paramedic services will be eliminated unless voters approve the Sept. 17 EMS levy.

The proposed levy for the next four years will remain at $0.37 per $1,000 of assessed value with no increase from the 1998 amount.

Because the levy makes up 46 percent of the operating budget for ambulance services on the island, continuing the levy is crucial, say emergency medical services leaders.

"From its inception, the advanced life support offered on Whidbey Island has been unique," said Whidbey General Hospital CEO Scott Rhine. "This system is progressive and advanced. Given the rural nature of the island, it is unusual to have the services of paramedics available at all, and most areas with the population density of Whidbey Island would have fewer ambulances and no advanced life support."

The unique geographical shape of the island is another concern. As EMS Manager Roger Meyer puts it, "Geographically, we're in a bind because of the size of the island, and more importantly the shape. Positioning ambulances and getting to the patients in the shortest period of time is a challenge."

Here's what Meyer said has been accomplished with taxpayers' money over the past four years.

"We've added another paramedic unit, an improvement with effects that were felt immediately," he said. The newest paramedic-staffed ambulance is housed in Oak Harbor, and although the ambulance is on the north end of the island, the impact of having the additional personnel has been felt island-wide, he said. "Our goal is to get an ambulance to the caller within six minutes, a goal that's been achieved 90 percent of the time." The additional staffing was felt most significantly in Central Whidbey and on South Whidbey, he said.

Whenever an ambulance is dispatched to a call, the rest of the units "shift" to fill the vacated area, providing better service to all areas.

More paramedics have been hired to staff the ambulances. And Whidbey General has supplemented education and training to outside agencies.

"We've implemented an aggressive maintenance program for our ambulances," said Meyer. "Our call volume has increased, with greater demands on the ambulances, resulting in additional mileage and more engine time. The program tracks routine maintenance and provides for a quicker solution to more serious problems."

Continuing the levy for another four years will allow the EMS system to continue without cutting service.

The measure will be on the ballot in all Whidbey Island precincts in the Sept. 17 primary election. To pass, it requires approval by 60 percent.

Coveland Street: paving yes, parking no

Next week, there may be no parking allowed on Coveland Street for one day.

Last Wednesday, the street was prepared for paving, and paving could be done as early as next Thursday or as late as Tuesday, Sept. 3, according to Coupeville Public Works Director Malcolm Bishop.

At press time, Bishop wasn't able to say which day the street would be paved, but that people who need to park on Coveland would be inconvenienced only one day: Aug. 29 or 30 or Sept. 3, the day after Labor Day.

Studio Tour is Sept. 14-15

The Island Arts Council of Whidbey Island presents the sixth year of the popular Annual Open Artists' Studio Tour on the weekend of Sept. 14-15.

Some 29 Whidbey artists will talk with visitors, answer questions and demonstrate their work. Many will offer their art work for sale. Studio locations range from near Coupeville in Central Whidbey to the southern tip of the Island.

Well-known and newer artists are participating: Angele Woolery, Pete Wolf, Lloyd Whannell, Sarah Wallace, Lynn Swanson, Sharon Spencer, Christine Shrader, Marva Russell, Betty Rayle, Hank Nelson, Ivan Neaigus, Barbara Mundell, Pat McVay, Bruce Launer, Faye Kazdal, Alexy Kazantsev, Moe Jerome, David Iles, Julie Hougom, Jeff Holtby, Gail Gwinn, Deborah Eimers, Diane Divelbess, Carol Rose Dean, Anne Davenport, Truman Castle, Nancy Bond, Robert Bennett, Anne Belov. You'll see oil and water color painting, pastel, fine furniture and fine metal work, marble, bronze and mixed media sculpture, quilting, photography, tile making and more.

The full-color ticket/brochure with map and detailed driving instructions guides tour-goers to the studios. Also included is an image of each artist's work and a brief biography. Tour Headquarters will be at the Bayview Corner Gallery, located 1/4 mile off Highway 525.

There will be an exhibit of each of the artist's work, tickets for sale ($10) for the tour, and information about the artists and the tour. For more information call (360) 221-6422.

Dates: Saturday Sept. 14, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday Sept. 15, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets available beginning Aug. 26 at: Jim's Hardware, Clinton; Bayview Corner Gallery; the Artists' Co-op Gallery, Langley; the 1504 Coffee Bar, Freeland; and The Bayleaf, Coupeville.

Preservation Field School offers lectures here

While it's here in the heart of Ebey's Landing National Historical Reserve working on the Ferry House, the Pacific Northwest Preservation Field School is offering a series of free lectures, open to the public. They begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Quartermasters Building at Camp Casey, across from the Parade Grounds.

Next week's lectures are about the cultural landscape:

Aug. 26, Chinese Settlement and Farming in Ebey's Prairie by Prof. Gail Dubrow and Scott Harbour;

Aug. 27, Landscapes of Internment by Anna Tamura of Seattle;

Aug. 28, The Designed Landscape of the Wonderland Trail, Mt. Rainier National Park, by Erica Owens and Mike Hankinson;

Aug. 29, NPS Orchards slide lecture by Susan Dolan;

The first week in September, the emphasis will be on coastal fortifications:

Sept. 2, Orientation to Coastal Fortifications, by David Hanson;

Sept. 3, Technology Lecture: Concrete, Metals, by David Look;

Sept. 4, Fortifications at Golden Gate NRA, San Francisco, by Steven Haller;

Sept. 5, 19th Century Architecture, by Don Peting.

The next week, emphasis will be on outbuildings:

Sept. 9, 19th Century Architecture, by Don Peting;

Sept. 10, Backcountry Lookouts in North Cascades: Preservation and Maintenance, by Craig Holmquist;

Sept. 12, to be announced.

For more information call 678-6084.

OBITUARY

Marshall King

Coupeville resident Marshall King, 80, died Aug. 15, 2002 in Seattle. He was born Oct. 22, 1921 in Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. King served in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II. After the war he embarked on a 40-year career with CBS as a studio-audio technician.

He retired from CBS in 1987.

Mr. King is survived by his son Russell King of Pennsylvania and his daughters Beverly Street of California and Lorraine Day of Seattle, Wash.

While with CBS, Mr. King received several awards for his work, including an Emmy for "Salute to James Cagney." He worked with such stars as Red Skelton, Art Linkletter, Danny Thomas, Gene Autrey and Jack Benny, and on such popular TV shows as "All in the Family."

Mr. King was an accomplished writer and photographer, long known on Whidbey Island for his black and white photographs published in local newspapers for his beloved Island County Amateur Radio Club. His amateur radio call was N7PIP.

There will be no memorial service, and no memorial donations are requested.

However, a no-host memorial dinner for friends is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 29, 6 p.m. at the C.P.O. Club in Oak Harbor. For more information, please call Rich Scoble at 678-3745.

Too much zucchini?

Gardeners with extra produce on hand are encouraged to share some with those in need through the Gifts From the Heart Food Bank in Coupeville and Greenbank.

Produce can be dropped off at special boxes outside of the sites on distribution days, and will be used to supplement staples that are provided by the food bank.

Methodists to host reception

On Monday, August 26th, at 2 p.m., the Coupeville United Methodist Church is hosting a reception for Yugo and Elizabeth Suzuki, missionaries home on leave from Japan. They will be joined by members of the Langley and Oak Harbor Methodist churches. This is a chance to hear firsthand about the Suzuki's work there. Everyone is invited; coffee and cookies will be served.

The next distribution will be Aug. 28. Produce can be left in specially marked boxes from 1-5 p.m. in Coupeville at the Service Alternatives Building at 206 N. Main Street, or in Greenbank at the Progressive Club at Bakken and Poor roads.

Food distribution days are on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month. Please note that no produce can be accepted on other days or times, due to lack of storage capability.

Volunteers are also needed to help with the distribution when regular volunteers are on vacation or out sick. For information or to volunteer call Beth Kelly at 678-9083 or Molly Hughes at 678-8312.

Intruder still at large

Police are still looking for a homeless man who burglarized a mobile home on Terry Road July 12 and briefly kidnapped and threatened to kill the elderly resident.

Coupeville Marshal Lenny Marlborough and Island County Sheriff Mike Hawley ask citizens to call 9-1-1 to report sightings of the man.

"It would be better for all concerned if he would turn himself in," said Marlborough.

A police sketch of the man, which appeared on the front page of the July 26 Coupeville Examiner, is still posted throughout Central Whidbey.

Maxine's accountable to citizens

Editor,

In response to "Treasurer's race gets third candidate," (July 27 Whidbey News-Times)... (the) byline should have read, "Paid Political Announcement."

I do admire (Marty) Matthews' candor in admitting his attachment to Boeing. As a financial analyst in the Office of the Secretary of Defense under Schlesinger and Rumsfeld, I saw the tricky maneuvers of Boeing and their defense contractor cohorts up close and personal. If that's the style of financial wizardry and shenanigans you want for Island County, here's your chance!

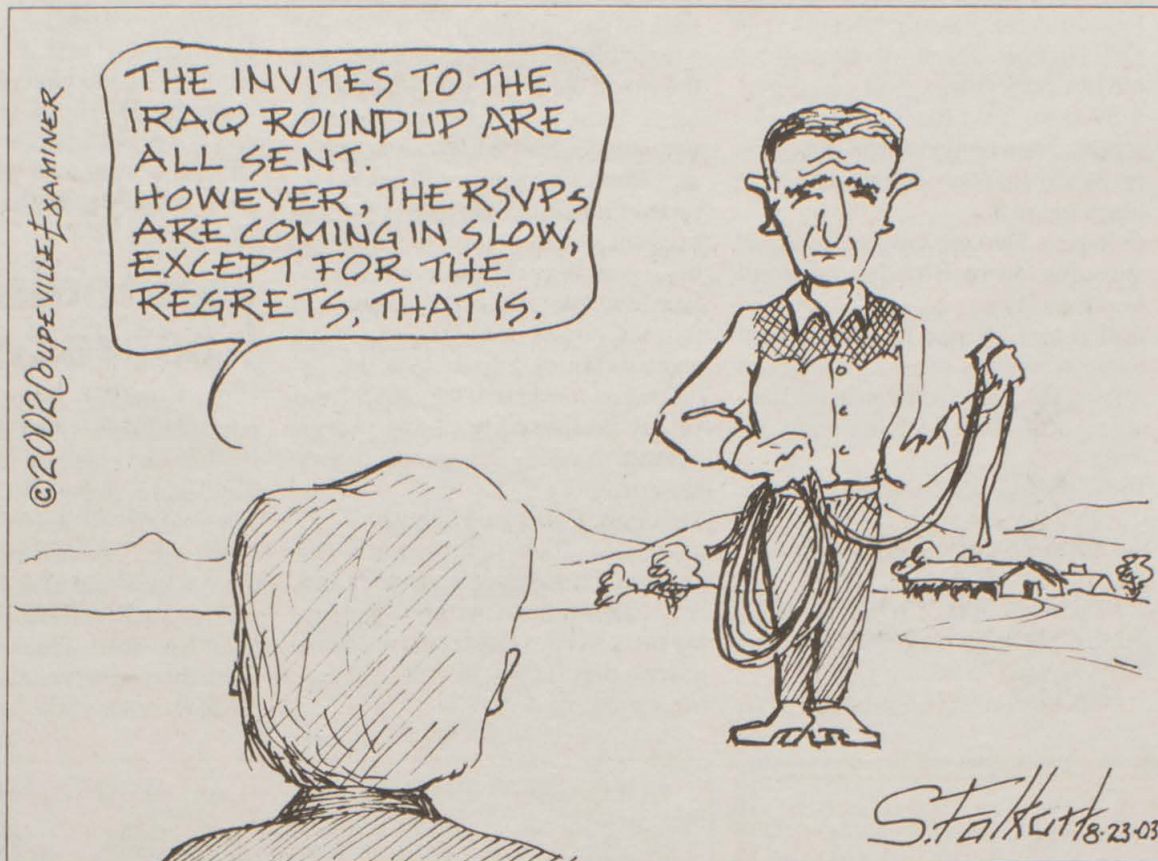

"Utilize technology to gain productivity" in our Treasurer's Office? It's one of the few places left on the planet where you can speak with a real person on the telephone. Of course, computer technology does provide for "inventive" accounting procedures — how else could ENRON and Anderson have hidden their cozy network of fraud and deceit?

And when it comes to bowing to the wishes of those micromanaging bureaucrats from Olympia... if you've had the misfortune to meet some of those "cradle-to-grave freeloaders," you already know their arrogance is exceeded only by their ignorance.

Give 'em hell, Maxine! Send 'em back to their luxury suites in the State Auditor's office with their laptops between their knees — and keep our Treasurer's office accountable to the good citizens of Island County.

As to Mr. Matthews' professed friendship with Mrs. Sauter — I doubt it! Maxine's the widow of one of America's fallen military heroes, and an excellent judge of character.

Time to replace Republicans with Democrats

Editor,

Aug. 13, 2002. Economic Forum conducted at Baylor University, Waco, Texas (Reuters News). "I'm incredibly optimistic about America," the President told the meeting attended by VP Dick Cheney, Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill and other senior officials. After those glad words, Dubya rushed off to the west to raise tons of money from those wealthy businessmen, to elect Republican politicians.

What has gone on in the rest of the country in the past 10 days or so? USAirways filed for bankruptcy. American Airlines announced that 7,000 jobs would be eliminated and 74 planes will be grounded. United Airlines has announced that the company may file bankruptcy by mid-November. (UAL stock shares have dropped from $35.00 to $2.45 since Jan. 1.) IBM will cut 15,600 jobs. Flextronics plans to cut 5,261 jobs. Agere will cut 4,000 jobs. Since Dubya was elected by those five Republican Supreme Court justices, one only needs to read stock market reports to see what Dubya and his big "bidness" friends have done to retirement funds owned by common folks. Now Dubya is working on a program to allow large, sticky Republican hands to get into our Social Security money.

Who's in charge? Dubya? Dick (Halliburton) Cheney?

The Republican Party is in charge, including the Republican congress members and the wealthy bidness men. We have a chance to get this country out of the hands of Republicans before it's too late. If you think things are bad now, just watch how far down Republicans could take us. Need a reminder?

Republican Reagan left office with $3 trillion in debt. Republican Bush added another $1 trillion in his four years... Republican Bush liked himself known as Kinder, Gentler Bush (KGB). His claim to fame became known as the Savings and Loan Fiasco and that bled the American public to the tune of five hundred billion dollars.

As Yogi Berra said, "It's déjà vu all over again." Not what was done by KGB, but by Compassionate Conservative Bush (CCB). His buddies call him Dubya. Let's just call him a "mistake." There is time to undo what he and his Republican cronies have done. Go to the polls in November and vote for Democrats.

What a 'happening place' the farm has been

The question is not what is happening at the Greenbank Farm but what is not!

The Farm has been a beehive of activity. Sandwiched between weddings, art and photo shows, concerts, day camps for kids and our usual assortment of community meetings in the Jim Davis House, the Loganberry Festival occurred. It was fabulous! There was a little bit of everything. Metal sculpture to cat toys. Photographs to furniture. Jewelry to fresh picked loganberries. Good food, wine varieties to taste from 12 wineries and great music. Jim Freeman outdid himself in producing two days of entertainment that received rave reviews for its diversity and quality.

On behalf of everyone here at the Farm, I want to thank our volunteers: Carolyn and Gerry Mercer, Annie and Ross Horton, MD Lussen, Lorrie Mutschler, Paul Maciocha, Mike Etzell, Michael Seraphinoff, Don Stewart, Jan Nelson, Joyce Watenpaugh, Bill and Nancy Kramer, Rob Craig, Riel Holbrook and Adele Walimki. Your support is so important. Special gratitude for Helen Clendenin who spent the week before the festival helping us get ready, then staffed the Farm booth for both festival days. And, blessings upon the Nowlin family (Mickie, Jim, Marie, Katie, Emi, Nancy, Shawn and Brad) for their all-out effort both days in directing the parking. The festival would not have been successful without each of you! I am grateful to the Farm staff for their extra efforts and teamwork in preparation for, and during the festival. Roni Baker, Joe Arnold, Ardis Steggall, Sheila Ward, Issy Olivia . . . you are all wonderful and I appreciate you so much. Gordon Sears, our Board Treasurer and his wife Christie get the "above and beyond the call of duty award" for taking on the management of the wine tents.

So what else is new? The Port of Coupeville has approved capital repairs at the Jim Davis House. A new roof is going on as I write. Painting the outside is next. The Port has approved funding for the preparation work and a primer coat. You are all invited to a painting party later this fall to put on the final coat of paint. Then this lovely old house will be ready for winter!

Plans are under way to have a heating system installed in the main barn. Can you hear all the holiday market vendors and customers cheering? This popular project will be completed prior to the Whidbey General Hospital 6th Annual Aliveness Through Cancer art show Oct. 11-12. The mechanical contractors have recommended an overhead radiant tube heat system, which, they promise, will keep our heads and toes warm. Completion of the heating project extends the barn's availability for community events, meetings and celebrations year round. This should make the difference in the Farm non-profit management group's bottom line, red to black.

If you have not been by lately, stop in and take a walk through our loganberry patch. Its neat and tidy condition is the result of hours of volunteer labor by the Farm's neighbor and friend, Paul Maciocha. He has weeded, pruned, tied up new growth and rehabilitated the drip irrigation system to function properly. The patch is flourishing because of his hard work. The Greenbank Farm is blessed with people like Paul. They give freely of themselves, shrugging off the thank yous as unnecessary. See FARM, page 6

New books by Coupeville authors

It's a story that has all the elements of good fiction: An elderly lady, Blanche Beau, lives out her life in a large, Victorian home in Sacramento. She never marries, but usually has people around the house because she takes in boarders. As she grows frail, two of her boarders take care of her. When she dies, the boarders inherit the house and its contents. Then, when the boarders eventually die, their family members inherit the house from them.

lific knitter and travels around the states and Canada to teach knitting. When she's home, she works in her office every day from 8:30 a.m. until 3 p.m.

On Saturday, Aug. 31, Wiseman will be the demonstrating artist at the Island County Historical Society Museum during the Art Walk from 5 to 9 p.m.

She will be knitting, displaying her finished products, and may even have a few samples of her knitted wire jewelry, the subject of a book, "Knitting with Wire," due out in February of 2003. Her most recent book, "The Knitters Guide to Finishing Techniques," should be out in October of this year. Her books are available at the museum bookstore, Kingfisher Books in Coupeville or online at www.nancieknits.com.

As a charming postscript to the Beau story, Wiseman still has Blanche's notebook. And the notebook ended up on Whidbey Island because after teaching a class at the Coupeville Arts Center, Wiseman and her husband, Bill Attwater, ended up moving here.

It's an exciting month when I can write about two different local authors, and I'll admit that two subjects could hardly be more disparate than knitting and World War II, but I'm happy to announce that Edward Carr, also of Coupeville, has self-published a book entitled "On Final Approach, Recollections of a World War II B-17 Air Crew." Carr, a native Washingtonian and retired lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, spent about two years working off and on to research his book. The B-17 pilot contacted members of his air crew, who contributed photos, documents and stories.

Carr reminds readers that the men who fought in the war were often inexperienced, "nine young men with minimal training, flying a heavy bomber across the North Atlantic and then on missions over Germany."

For WWII veterans, for aviation and military buffs, and anyone interested in the B-17 "Flying Fortress," this book should be a good one. Carr initially had just 100 copies of the book printed, and a few are still available at Wind and Tide in Oak Harbor, the Book Bay in Freeland, and Kingfisher Books in Coupeville. It can also be ordered online at www.381st.org.

Congratulations to both Coupeville authors for producing books that fill specialty niches in the publishing world.

BOOK REMARKS

By Karen Rothboeck

Up in the attic there are enough items that some are kept but others get thrown out. The sister of one of the boarders spots an old notebook in the trash. Inside, in faded fountain pen ink, are Blanche's patterns for knitting lace, accompanied by postage-stamp miniatures executed in thread of the various designs.

The sister takes the notebook to a woman she knows who owns a yarn shop, and that woman, who confesses, "As a kid, I always wanted to write, novels or something," takes the pattern book, translates the abbreviations and archaic directions into something more easily understandable, approaches a publisher and has her first book.

This is actually a true story: The author in question is a Coupeville woman, Nancie Wiseman, and Nancie has followed "Lace from the Attic, a Victorian Notebook of Knitted Lace Patterns," with two subsequent knitting books, and has another three in the works. Wiseman ranks knitting, teaching knitting, and writing about knitting — in that order — as what she likes to do. She's a prothe building to the north. The last phase added a rectangle to the rear, making the structure T-shaped. This was done about 1873 when more bedrooms were needed for inn guests.

Originally the house faced away from the water with the front door on the southeast side. When the rectangle was extended, a door was added in the middle of the house facing the sea and a gable was built above it.

In the passage of time, a porch was added on the front facade, the window in the gable was made into a door, and then in the thirties or forties the porch fell down and the door was returned to its former life as a window.

The slow disintegration of the Ferry House continued, arrested for awhile during the ownership of Frank and Robert Pratt, then resuming its downward slide (assisted by lightning and earthquakes) until its state of near-collapse today.

Another subject of interest during the next few weeks will be the outbuilding behind the house which once contained a summer kitchen separated by a covered breezeway or

"dogtrot" from another room with an as-yet-unknown purpose. Perhaps this mystery, along with others, will be solved. Since outbuildings tend to disappear when their functions cease to be relevant, this picturesque ruin is of great interest to Professor Peting and his students.

Ebey's Prairie would be desolate without the Ferry House, just as those who love the old building would be desolate were it to disappear. How fortunate we are that help has arrived to save this monument to our common history and the particular, treasured memories contained within its walls.

If anyone has early photos of the Ferry House, or stories relative to its past, please contact the Ebey's Landing National Historical Reserve office at 678-6084. Both photos and reminiscences would be of help in the Ferry House restoration process. There is still room in two of the Field School classes. Those interested should contact the Reserve office for details about classes and the free evening lectures.

weeks. I am in awe of the generosity of their spirits.

The last bit of news has to do with alpacas. Island entrepreneur Dick Whittick has leased 10 acres here at the Farm to raise alpacas. The perimeter fencing is up. The field is between Highway 525 and the trees west of the main barn. We are pretty excited about it. I get asked when they are coming about 10 times a day. I keep saying maybe tomorrow. So look as you go by tomorrow, they may be there.

Here are some flicks for Vinnie Jones fans

Vinnie Jones is a rock.

A former English soccer star whose penchant for knee-busting, groin-thumping defensive play earned him an early, forced retirement, he's begun to build a second career as one of the hardest of silver screen enforcers.

In "Lock, Stock and Two Smoking Barrels" and "Snatch," he put the grit in director Guy Ritchie's highly-stylized depictions of lowlifes who live to pulverize each other. Capable of projecting extreme menace without raising his voice or an eyebrow, he reduced the other tough-guy wannabes in those casts to mere bystanders content to anxiously scan their medical release forms.

Now, trading some of the menace in for an unexpected smattering of charm, Jones has his first headlining job in the new-to-video soccer-in-prison picture "Mean Machine." He's not the guy you want to run into on a dark, wet soccer pitch, but the film actually allows him to smile... at least I assume that twisted grimace on the lower half of his face is a smile.

TIME

By David Soien

Based on Burt Reynolds' semi-classic football-in-prison flick "The Longest Yard," the update features Jones as a disgraced former soccer star sent to do some time behind bars after a drunken rampage.

Loathed by a soccer-mad nation of people who believe he threw a key game for the benefit of gamblers, Jones is not exactly the most popular inmate on the block. Things get even chippier when the warden decides he should replace the coach of a team made up of prison guards.

Facing opposition from both sides of the cell bars, he opts for a different tactic. Let the prisoners play the guards in a game, and he'll lead the cons.

Kick-starting a motley group of bombers, murderers and mental patients, he faces an opponent which is highly organized, perfectly trained, perfectly organized and hyper-competitive. The only answer: Play dirty.

"Mean Machine" is the dark side of all those endless films about plucky sports teams who unite and beat overwhelming odds. Funny, yet leavened with some serious grit, it's a sturdy alternative.

A win here doesn't mean half as much to the participants as the chance to apply some soccer spikes to a prone guard's knee, which is why the rough-and-tumble Jones fits in so well.

When your goalie is a deranged maximum security inhabitant who rattles even the implacable Jones, and most of your team would rather take a knife to the ribs than consider passing the ball, it's safe to say none of the winners are going to Disney World after the game.

Back to the cell to have a tattered, torn victory cigarette, puffed between two split lips, well, now, that's more like it.

Now on Video

- Kirsten Dunst is "The Cat's Meow,"
- Tim Allen is reborn as "Joe Somebody,"
- Cameron Diaz is "The Sweetest Thing,"
- Mel Gibson remembers when "We Were Soldiers,"
- Michael Caine gets a "Shiner,"
- college hijinks are led by "Van Wilder,"
- a writer named "Iris" loses her grip on sanity,
- for Ice Cube it's "All About the Benjamins,"
- Peter Pan leads a "Return to Neverland,"
- a Chinese man asks "What Time is it There?" and
- animated icons unite when "Scooby-Doo Meets Batman."

Chris and Helen Pantaleon's restaurant, Zorba's, has been voted "Best All Around Dining" on Whidbey for the last two years.

Zorba's: Simply the best

There are certain restaurants that seem to attract legions of loyal regulars. Reasons for this vary but usually include one or more of the following: an attractive, comfortable design, delicious and varied menu offerings, generous portions, reasonable prices and a friendly, knowledgeable wait staff.

Then there are some restaurants, such as Zorba's Restaurant on Pioneer Way in Oak Harbor, which attract loyal regulars because they have all of the aforementioned attributes. Which is probably the reason that for the last two years, newspaper readers in Coupeville and Oak Harbor have voted Zorba's 'number one' in the "Best All Around Dining" category in the 'Best of Whidbey' competition.

No small feat in a town with dozens of eateries competing for customers.

But then Zorba's has never been just another eatery.

When Zorba's, which offers Mediterranean, Greek and Italian cuisine, was purchased by Chris and Helen Pantaleon about 18 months ago, it was already a successful, if small and often crowded, restaurant.

Pantaleon immediately made two fortuitous decisions.

One was to more than double the space by expanding in the empty business next door on Pioneer Way in Old Town Oak Harbor and contract for a remodel that resulted in an atmosphere that is at once casual and elegant; tasteful yet understated.

The other decision was not to fix what wasn't broken. To wit, he left the popular menu alone.

The result is that Zorba's is steadily carving out a reputation as a nicely appointed destination for lunch or dinner whether alone, or in a crowd of family or co-workers. An any occasion, for anyone, destination — be it to celebrate a birthday, anniversary, promotion or just a good meal at a reasonable price, in a clean, well-lighted place.

It's easy to see why Owner Chris Pantaleon says Zorba's is also increasingly becoming a location for large lunch gatherings of up to 20 people at a time.

In addition, the menu is so varied that members of large groups need never order the same entree.

For those counting calories, Zorba's offers an extensive selection of soups and salad combinations; the appetizer menu has 15 choices to tempt the palate; and the Greek Pasta selections are varied, copious and delicious.

For those with regionally challenged palates, Zorba's also offers staples such as fish and chips, burgers and quiche.

Regular Chris Saxon says its not just one thing that keeps him coming back to Zorba's, more a combination of good things.

"The food is good, the portions are huge, the prices are really reasonable and Chris and Helen (Pantaleon) make friends of their customers," Saxon said. "Plus, their Super Burger has been hailed as the best on Whidbey."

Just like the restaurant, according to a growing legion of loyal regulars.
