The tension of competition

Whidbey CB'ers REACT to emergencies

by Jessie Milligan

They are watchdogs of the airwaves, monitoring a frequency carrying emergency calls and requests for aid.

There are more than two dozen of them active on North Whidbey, Citizen's Band Radio buffs who find their spare time spent monitoring Channel 9 is more than a hobby but a time when they may find themselves being the very communication link shortening response time of emergency services to a scene of an accident.

They are called Radio Emergency Association Citizen's Teams (REACT), part of an international organization of CBers who are affiliated with the Red Cross nationally and Island County Emergency Services locally.

North Whidbey members fill a watch bill and volunteer hours to stay atune to Channel 9, the frequency set aside by government regulations to carry information on emergencies involving life or death decisions, information on property damage, highway obstructions and aid to travellers.

An estimated one-third of calls heard by North Whidbey REACT members are from boaters in distress; the remainder are traffic-related calls including reports of drunk drivers as well as medical emergencies and travellers calling for information.

REACT members have a CB in their home and relay information being called in from the scene of a mishap to emergency services, sometimes listening to the incoming plea on the radio with one hand and holding the telephone in the other hand, ready to call for aid.

And sometimes their REACT training in the kind of information to relay in emergencies has helped get aid on the road before the mishap occurs.

North Whidbey REACT member Ed Vance relates the story of getting a call for help after a car accident on SR20.

Vance asked the standard questions, asking the CBer on the scene the location of the accident, the number of cars involved, if there were any injuries, if the highway was blocked and if the gas tank had ruptured.

Power lines were down and the tank had ruptured. One of Vance's first calls was to the fire department, where trucks began to roll even

Shorecrest fools Wildcats in 16-7 win

by Steve Potter

Shorecrest scored on its first play from scrimmage — a 48-yard run — enroute to a 16-7 Western Conference football win over Oak Harbor Thursday night.

The East Division-leading Scots improved their Wesco mark to 3-0 and their overall record to 4-1, while the hard-luck Wildcats dropped to 1-2 in league and 2-3 overall.

Shorecrest senior halfback Todd Stenberg scored from 48 yards out on his team's first offensive play.

On the play, the Scots set up in an unusual way with only two linemen to the left of the center.

The unbalanced line allowed Shorecrest to have seven blockers on a sweep to the right side.

The Wildcat defense was caught out of position on the play and Stenberg scored easily as no Oak Harbor player came close to even touching him.

The conversion kick was good and Shorecrest had a quick 7-0 lead.

On its third possession, the Scots scored again on a 46-yard draw play by fullback Mike Archbold capping a nine-play, 69-yard drive.

Again, the Scots set up in an unusual formation which caught the Wildcats by surprise only this time there were three receivers set wide to the right and the draw play ran up the middle.

With a minute left before halftime, OHHS quarterback Marc Beaudet hit flanker Jas Kirk in stride down the sidleines with a perfect pass for an apparent 40-yard touchdown, but the play was called back on a holding penalty.

The Wildcats only score came on its first possession of the second half after George Jesus intercepted a Scots aerial at midfield.

Oak Harbor drove 50 yards in eight plays all on the ground with halfback Chris Isaacson going over from six yards out for the score.

Beaudet gained 16 yards, Isaacson went for 15 yards and halfback Glenn Strachan gained 14 yards on the drive with five yards earned on a SHS penalty.

After Tim Shelley's kick made it 13-7, the Wildcat defense took over control of the game.

Shorecrest gained only 20 yards rushing in the second half compared to 126 in the first half.

In fact, Shorecrest was forced to quick kick on third down-and-14 from its five-yard line on the series following the Wildcat score.

Oak Harbor took over on the SHS 46 and drove the ball down field to the Shorecrest 10 on eight plays.

Then, with two yards to go for a first down, the Scots defense rose up and stopped the Wildcats on two running plays up the middle and snuffed out Oak Harbor's best chance to score.

The Wildcats did get the ball back with six minutes remaining in the game at the SHS 45, but a holding penalty, a pass interference call and a QB sack put the Wildcats in a fourth-and-50 situation and no choice but to punt.

The snap bounced back to the punter, who got a short kick off while trying to hurry and the home team took over at the OHHS 18.

Three plays later, Greg Sanders came in to kick a 25-yard field goal to ice the game, 16-7.

The Wildcats play host to Everett Friday, Oct. 17 at 7:30 p.m., while Shorecrest travels to Mountlake Terrace Saturday night, Oct. 18.

Western Conference breaking up next year

Oak Harbor's athletic league, the Western Conference (Wesco), will be split up into two new divisions beginning next school year.

The athletic directors decided at a Wednesday, Oct. 8 meeting to divide Wesco's 14 teams into an eight-team class 'AAA' division and a six-team class 'AA' division.

To be in the 'AAA' Wesco league, a school must have at least a 1,000 students in the upper three grades, while 'AA' schools are required to have a minimum of 450 students, but less than a 1,000.

Wesco has been a entire 'AAA' conference in the past, but declining enrollment at all of the Shoreline District schools and three of the Edmonds District schools began discussions about splitting the league in two.

Oak Harbor will remain class 'AAA' in the new alignment along with Cascade, Everett, Lynnwood, Mariner, Marysville, Meadowdale and Snohomish.

Those schools in Wesco's 'AA' division will be Edmonds, Mountlake Terrace, Shorecrest, Shoreline, Shorewood and Woodway.

The new leagues will go into effect with the fall sports of 1981.

The changeover will mean a lowering of transportaion costs for Oak Harbor because most of the schools dropping down into the 'AA' Wesco are the ones the farthest away.

"It will not only save us transportation costs, but it will mean the kids won't have to leave school as early on game days and will be getting home a little earlier," said Tom Burrows, OHHS athletic director.

During football season in the new setup, Oak Harbor will have seven Wesco league games and then will be free to line up two non-conference games with any school it can find.

In the current Wesco alignment of two seven-team divisions for football, open dates on the schedule could only be filled with Wesco schools from the other division, known as cross-over games.

So, in the past two years Oak Harbor has played Shoreline, Marysville and Shorewood in cross-over football games.

Next year, the two non-league games could be against the likes of Burlington or Anacortes or Arlington or anyone else with a more local rivalry.

The only sports not affected by Wednesday's decision will be golf and girls gymnastics, which were not league-wide sports anyway.

In those sports, Oak Harbor will continue to compete against the same Wesco schools it has in the past years.

Candidates Nights

Prior to the Nov. 4 general election the Whidbey Island chapter of the League of Women Voters will put on two "Candidates' Nights" to prepare voters.

The first will be Thursday, Oct. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Oak Harbor High School Commons. It will cover only the two county commissioner races and the three county ballot issues.

One commissioner race will pit Jack McPherson against Lou Romeo, while the other will be a contest between Glenn Macomber and E. Duane Kemp.

The ballot issues are a public Transportation sales tax levy, a swimming pool bond and a advisory popular vote on the proposed owner-builder amendment. The league is lining up speakers on both sides of these issues to present their cases.

While the league alone is sponsoring the Oct. 16 forum, the sponsorship of the other Candidates' night is shared between the league and the South Whidbey Business and Professional Women's Club. It will be Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 7 p.m. at the multi-purpose room at Coupeville Elementary School.

It will feature candidates only: Al Swift and Neal Snider for the Second Congressional District, U.S. House of Representatives; Bill Daugherty and Jack Metcalf for the 10th Legislative District, State Seante; Eleanor Fortson and Joan Houchen for the 10th District, State House; Buzz Costa and Sim Wilson for the other 10th District, House spot; the two commissioner races; and others.

The King County Swimming Pool in Renton, Reaching Out to the Public Helps It Succeed

by Dale Juliet-Burrows

—On Nov. 4, voters in the North Whidbey Island Parks and Recreation District will decide a bond issue proposing construction of a new community swimming pool. As part of a concerted effort to help familiarize the electorate with some of the particulars pertainng to that issue, our Oak Harbor Rotary Club is sponsoring a series of written articles to be published in the Whidbey News-Times, which will detail some of the uses being made of existing community swimming pools throughout the Pacific Northwest. What follows here is the third in that series of articles.—

One of the two managers of the King County swimming pool in Renton, Mr. Jay Parker — a lanky, auburnheaded, studious-looking man who obviously takes his job seriously — had just finished going on and on, almost interminably on, about how the secret to a financially successful community pool is in putting it to use and about how scuba diving clubs and ladies trim-and-fitness groups and graduating high school classes and various businessmen's associations and the like, are all regularly renting the pool so that they can make use of it and about how the pool is doing so well, probably because it offers individuals and organizations the chance, not only to learn swimming and diving but also to swim and dive competitively and for fun. "Honestly, Jay; I don't really think the programs offered explain a great deal about why this facility is doing so much better financially than most other pool facilities in the King County system. You're all offering the same thing or darn near it as far as I can tell."

I didn't want to sound too argumentative. Jay was, after all, showing me around after pool hours and on his own time, which he didn't have to do; and then too, he had also gone out of his way earlier to meet me at the Sheraton-Renton Hotel so that I could follow him in his Datsun pickup because, as he had warned me over the phone when I first called him, "it's almost impossible to give visitors street directions that will get them here to the pool." However, on the other hand, neither had I driven away most of my Saturday afternoon getting to Renton so that I could hear Jay say his pool offered the community something unique in the way of programs, not when the Renton pool schedule I was holding in my hand, indicated exactly otherwise. "In the world of swimming pools and public finance," I tried softening my voice so as not to seem any more impatient than I probably already did, "a facility is considered highly successful if it can make back sixty per cent of its maintenance and operations expenses; and yet, for the past four years in a row, the Renton District pool, along with a very few others in the King County system, has either equalled that figure or managed to better it by a few percentage points. How do you do it?" I told Jay that a lot of us living in the North Whidbey Island Parks and Recreation District were thinking about having our own community pool but that we wanted more information before making up our minds and we would be interested in knowing why some community pools do better than others financially. "How do you think you do it?"

"Well, staff tries to accommodate people; for example . . ." Jay, interrupting himself to call attention to the two low diving boards we were standing by at the deep end of the pool, explained that the boards were one meter off the water and that divers came from all over the County to practice on them because they were the only two boards of their kind for miles around. "I was going to say our cashier, Myrna is her name, that Myrna is always trying to work out the best price she can for the people who come in to swim."

"Assisting people probably does encourage a lot of them to come back, but that doesn't say much about why so many of them come here in the first place; you know?"

"Maybe it has to do with the prices we charge." Jay explained that kids up to three years of age and all other beginning swimmers including adults, paid eleven dollars for lessons unless they had already bought pool passes in which case lessons cost only seven dollars and that kids ages three to five and all others interested in swimming and diving competitively, paid thirteen dollars for lessons unless they had already bought pool passes in which case lessons cost them only nine dollars. "The recreational swims cost individuals fifty cents a session when they are for the general public and ninety cents a session when they are restricted to adults, and trim-and-fitness classes cost ladies ninety cents a session, and senior citizens are never charged more than twenty-five cents for any session. Pool passes, of course, besides getting people a discount on their swimming and diving lessons, also get them admitted to all other sessions free of any additional charge." Jay said pool passes cost youngsters twenty dollars a quarter or forty dollars a year, adults twenty-five dollars a quarter or forty-five dollars a year and families thirty-five dollars a quarter or eighty dollars a year. "The passes are an especially good deal."

"But all King County pools charge the same, don't they?"

"But the people in our District seem to take advantage, especially of the pool pass discount."

"More so than people in other districts?"

"I think so." Jay said he and his staff believed the pool pass to be a bargain for the price and that, three or four times a year, they would all write letters and make phone calls and place newspaper advertising to let people in the community know exactly what programs their swimming pool was offering and what the prices of admission were going to be. "We're always careful to mention all prices; but the prices of pool passes are the ones we stress most because they represent the best buy, by far."

"And people respond, do they?"

"They seem to." Jay said that reaching out into the community every so often, involved a little extra effort on the part of him and his staff but that they didn't mind because they seemed usually to get favorable results. "We might not feel so positive if we didn't get such good results, I don't know."

"But you do get good results?"

Jay said yes and that familiarizing people with what was available seemed to make a difference. "Anyhow, that is what we do."

Afterward, when I was following Jay in his Datsun pickup out of the parking lot and we were leaving behind that big, brick, windowless, silo-looking cylinder that houses the swimming pool in Renton and that, frankly, doesn't much appeal to my own particular taste, I got to thinking about Jay and his staff and wondering about this whole business of reaching out into the community to let people know what was available to them. The pool passes were a good buy, I could see that; and it had to be right of Jay and his staff to let people know a good buy was available to them because the people in the Renton District were buying more and more passes and they were making more and more frequent use of their pool, I had seen official statistical reports to that effect. But it still didn't make convincing sense to me that telling people about a good thing would be, in and of itself, enough to get them to take advantage of it. Some sense of sincere caring, it seemed to me, had to be transpiring between Jay and his staff and the community that they were putting themselves out to stay in touch with.

Anyway, after I had wound my way through a maze of residential streets which I could never have found my way out of if I hadn't had Jay's Datsun to follow, he stopped at a stop sign and got out of his pickup and came back to talk to me. "If you want to get onto 405 North, maybe I better show you the way, it gets kind of complicated from here." I said fine and thanks, and followed him through some more turns and stops and starts, and then waved goodbye as I got onto 405 headed in the right direction. The sun was setting and it was starting to get dark and Jay had given up a good part of his own Saturday to help when he didn't have to. There was no sure way of knowing, I decided, whether Jay and his staff were always as helpful and as outgoing toward their community as he had been toward me; but one thing did to me seem reasonably certain. If they were, then the positive financial performance of a community swimming pool probably does have a lot to do with the give and take between the taxpayers who pay for a pool and the staff that they hire to run it. The King County swimming pool in Renton seemed to me to be a pretty fair case in point.

Crowds applaud Marine Band

From the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli, the United States Marine Band has entertained audiences throughout the world.

It has been two years since the band was in Oak Harbor and it returned here for a concert Thursday, October 9. The Oak Harbor High School Gymnasium was packed to see "the President's own" Marine Band perform its varied repertoire.

Composer John Philip Sousa, the march king, is always a favorite with audiences. Sousa conducted the United States Marine Band in the 19th century. Much of the music he wrote then is still performed today.

The Marine Band played Sousa's "The Beau Ideal," "Ben Hur Chariot Race," "Nobles of the Mystic Shrine," and "Stars and Stripes Forever."

In addition to Sousa, the first half of the band's program included Overture, "Les Francs-Juges," by Hector Berlioz; "Annie Laurie," by Arthur Pryer; "Sea Songs," by Thomas Knox, "Old Comrades," by Carl Teike; Scherzo Capriccioso, OP. 66 by Antonin Duorak.

The second half of the show led off with Sousa's "Nobles of the Mystic Shrine," and then Air Varie on Paganini's "Carnival of Venice," by D. W. Reeves; The Boatmen's Dance, The Dodger, Long Time Ago, Simple Gifts, I Bought Me A Cat, by Aaron Copland, and Rhapsody in Blue by George Gershwin.

Conditions cramped at Coupeville

The 700 plus students enrolled in the Coupeville schools have caused some problems by over crowding classrooms according to Supt. Dick Smith.

At a recent board meeting, special education teacher, Wendy Weber and aide Barbara Howard plus school psychologist, Ken Sebens, told of problems in their area with 31 students.

Sebens mentioned that it sometimes takes several months to properly place a student in the special ed classes and at the present time there are 21 students waiting to be evaluated. Therefore, it may be spring before the students are placed in special ed classes causing them to become another year behind.

More money and a special ed classroom at the elmentary school would help solve the problems, Weber said.

At the present time elementary school students in special ed classes are bused to the secondary school and there join older students making teaching much more difficult, she said.

The school district must provide special education for youngsters from age three and students can be referred by anyone who thinks there may be a need for special education. However, approval of the parent is necessary before students will be placed in special education classes, Seben said.

Special education is not the only place overcrowding is found.

Several teachers sent letters to the board pointing out the number of students in their classrooms and that according to a portion of the contract the board must review class size at the second meeting in September.

The congested areas include the first, third, sixth grades in the elementary school and shop and English classes in the secondary school.

Although Supt. Smith did not read the letters in open meeting he did make copies for the members of the board.

Bill Evans, vice president of the Coupeville Education Association asked that the letters be read and since they were not, he pointed out some of the major points.

Evans said the major concern is the student-teacher ratio and even if more aides are hired this would not meet the aims and objectives of the district in providing quality education.

Board president Kathy Anderson said the board must look at the total picture and what the district has to deal with especially in regard to finances.

The board directed Smith to review the situation and bring recommendations to the next board meeting.

Smith said that since negotiations have not been settled he will not suggest hiring more teachers at this time.

Island County Historical Notes

The boys say they have some rather high-toned people over at Oak Harbor. They are so high-toned that men who work on the farm for them are not allowed to eat at the same table as the family. This goes so much against the grain of any true American that they refuse to work on the place and it keeps the owner busy hunting up new hands. — Island County Sun, 16 July 1892

The SUN building is the only new business house that has been erected in Coupeville this season. — Island County Sun, 16 July 1892.

Quite a forest fire is reported burning on Camano Island by parties who have been there after berries. Island County Sun, 16 July 1892.

All the Sound towns have declared a quarantine against Victoria and neither passengers nor freight is allowed to enter from there. Island County Sun, 16 July 1892.

FREEDOMS TOO DEAR TO RISK

This newspaper makes mistakes. No matter what the circulation, the frequency of publication or the number of pages which are produced each week, your local newspaper is published by people who are not infallible. Because they are human and because of the hundreds of thousands of words that are processed each day or each week tdhere are bound to be errors in some stories.

News people sometimes become callous and forget the sensitivity of the reader who has been wronged. And the reader often times over-reacts to small inconsistencies in stories or perhaps reads into the story things that are not really there. In either case, the solution is usually a heart-to-heart talk with the reporter, the editor or the publisher.

You should feel, as a newspaper reader, every right -- no, every responsibility -- to contact this newspaper whenever you feel errors have occured. Sometimes a phone call will suffice to straighten out the problem. Sometimes a personal meeting is more in order. But in any case, newspapers invite constructive comments and do strive to be as accurate and truthful as possible.

Without the understanding and cooperation of the public, the First Amendment, upon which press freedom is built, is in serious jeopardy. Some people feel reporters should be licensed. They argue that if a reporter then steps out of line his license could be revoked. . . as is the case with doctors, lawyers and other professionals. But who is to do the licensing? Licensing brings with it many dangers of censorship through pressures from licensing boards, government, etc.

No, with all of our faults, the freedoms which are expressed through this newspaper are too dear to risk. The very foundation upon which our democracy operates is built upon a free and unfettered press. The right to criticize -- even if we are sometimes in error -- is one of the main factors in America remaining a free country for its citizens.

But the press is impotent without the support of the people. We need your understanding, your support, your cooperation and -- most of all -- your help in assuring your friends and neighbors that the next issue of this newspaper will be as free from censorship as this one.

During National Newspaper Week, why don't you plan on stopping by this newspaper office to become better acquainted with the system which has made America the democratic stronghold of the free world.

Freeland man jailed

A Freeland man claiming to have been growing marijuana to ease what he said were leg spasms from an old gunshot wound sustained during a bank robbery was sentenced in Island County Superior Court Friday.

Bert Harttlet was brought to court after more than 100,000 grams of marijuana were found at his Freeland residence.

Harttlet was on federal parole at the time for a February 1970 armed bank robbery in Seattle where he reportedly was shot in the leg by an officer after he attempted to draw a loaded nine millimeter Browning.

Harttlet told the court Friday he has "terrible spasms" from the gunshot wound. "It's either medication or I smoke a joint," he told the court. "I'm more functional with marijuana" he said, rather than the Quaaludes or Valiums he said are prescribed for the pain.

In addition to the marijuana, Harttlet was found to have a shotgun in his home during the search, another violation of parole.

Superior Court Judge Richard Pitt handed down a sentence he said carried some "tough conditions."

The Freeland man received a five year suspended sentence and six months in Island County jail with the last 90 days on work release.

In addition he must repay court and attorney costs, take treatment for his injury, submit to warrantless searches, take any physical tests required by the probation officer and he was ordered to make every possible effort to get full-time employment or training.

Pitt also said Harttlet will not be allowed to purchase or possess alcohol or go into any establishment where alcohol is sold. He also was ordered by the court to not keep weapons or guns for any reason.

CB'ers REACT . . .

before Vance got the second call from the CBer at the scene telling him the vehicle had burst into flames.

The response time of the fire department probably was cut down by 10 minutes, Vance estimated. And the vehicle was saved.

Vance quotes a Los Angeles Police Department survey of response times to accidents where the average time was cut down three to six minutes in cases where a CB radio helped make contact with police.

But REACT has another purpose when aiding in emergencies. "A primary thing is trying to keep people calm," Vance says. Radio contact letting people know they are not alone and that aid is coming can "go a long way toward the mental well-being of people in an emergency situation," he said.

Boating mishaps, for instance, average about three or four hours from the time the first report is heard on the CB channel 9 to the time the Coast Guard or Coast Guard Auxiliary has responded, Vance said, adding bad weather and the remote locations of boaters can stretch the rescue time to up to one he and other CBers worked on that took three days.

After radio contact, Vance said a REACT member will stay with the boater, talking to them, telling them to stay calm and relaying advice, until help is alongside.

"A good number of boaters on Puget Sound owe their lives to REACT and the Coast Guard Auxiliary," Vance says.

Many of the calls for aid local REACT members respond to do not originate nearby.

Because of a condition known as "skip," CBers monitoring Channel 9 can hear transmissions from all over the world, Japanese and Spanish speaking voices are not uncommon drifting out of Vance's CB into his living room.

Radio signals move upward where they deflect off layers in the ionosphere and bounce back down to earth.

The layers change thickness and as they do they change the distance of the radio signal bounce. Sometimes you can get Japanese voice coming in over a CB; often you can't get near Deception Pass.

Other factors figure in to CB reception, including weather, elevation, obstacles and even the mineralization of soils, Vance said. "It is a science."

"It can be a boon, but most of the time it is a bear," Vance said of the skip that causes long distance calls for help to be heard but blacks out more nearby pleas.

Vance and REACT members have had more than one experience where they have contacted out-of-state emergency services to come to the aid of a CB request, which could be heard on North Whidbey but not by local authorities near the scene of the accident.

Vance heard a request for help from a woman who drove off the road in a Utah snowstorm. "The skip conditions were such that she couldn't be heard in the immediate area," Vance said. He relayed the information from her call to Utah sheriff's deputies who were able to rescue the woman.

Now REACT's goal is to provide assistance 24-hours a day. Vance said that coverage is close now, varying daily with the number of volunteer hours signed up for, but that the group needs more than its current 30 active members.

New members are trained and go through an indoctrination period where another REACT member assists a new person on the air.

They are armed with information on how to respond to different emergencies and have telephone numbers of everything from local hospitals to the killer whale hotline.

REACT is a diverse group of people from housewives to accountants and any number of professions, Vance said. He calls it ideal for shut-ins or people who are bedridden — all they need is a CB radio at home and a telephone.

United Way drive comes to Langley

The United Way fund drive's information booth will come to Langley Friday, Oct. 10, in the park next to the Star Store.

It will be manned by agency representatives who will answer questions, hand out brochures, and accept contributions.

This week, information on United Way and its agencies may be obtained at the Senior Service Center in Bayview or at the law office of John Watson, this year's local drive chairman. United Way brochures will be available in all grocery stores and some business locations. Thermometers showing the campaign progress will be visible at the Langley Park, Casey's, and Payless.

Dock of the Town

by Mike Bunnell

This item strikes close to home, at least to yours truly: "Hot Ruddered Bum" is officially for sale. Dick and Margot Fulton, who bought HRB from Dave Harrington three years ago, helped introduce this writer to sailing via the Bum.

Harrington set the boat up for racing, while the Fultons tend to be more crusing-oriented types; the boat has served both purposes admirably, but Dick finds himself doing a lot of short-range singlehanding and has apparently decided that something smaller will serve his purposes. Thus a really well-equipped Newport 27 sports a "For Sale" sign on A-Dock.

"Juan Ton Sloop" is still a member of the Deskey family, although she's still for sale. Steve has taken to crewing with various other skippers while Louise, Dennis, and Derek take turns winning this or that race with JTS. The winner of last spring's San Juan 7.7 Nationals isn't quite roomy enough for family crusing, they say, although families with smaller children do alright overnighting in their 7.7's.

Dave Harrington's newest sailboat, "Ricochet," finished first in the PHRF class of the OHYC's just-concluded Rum Pumpkin race series. Wayne Hesselgrave's "Wild Turkey," which won both class and division honors in this year's Great Equalizer, finished second, followed by Stan Stanley's "First Morning."

In the San Juan 7.7 class Dennis Deskey finished the series first in "Juan Ton Sloop," followed by Woody Derry in in "Derry-Aire" and Tom Stark in "Goosebump."

Now that we're well into the off-season for cruising the San Juans, let's talk about cruising. Bob Raftery at the Blakely Island Marina is quietly cultivating off-season transit business.

With a new stone breakwater, with fuel available every day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and with the store open every day Blakely is a good destination for a weekend cruise. There's still some Indian summer left, and non-Indians are entitled to soak up half of the harvestable sunshine. Happy cruising.

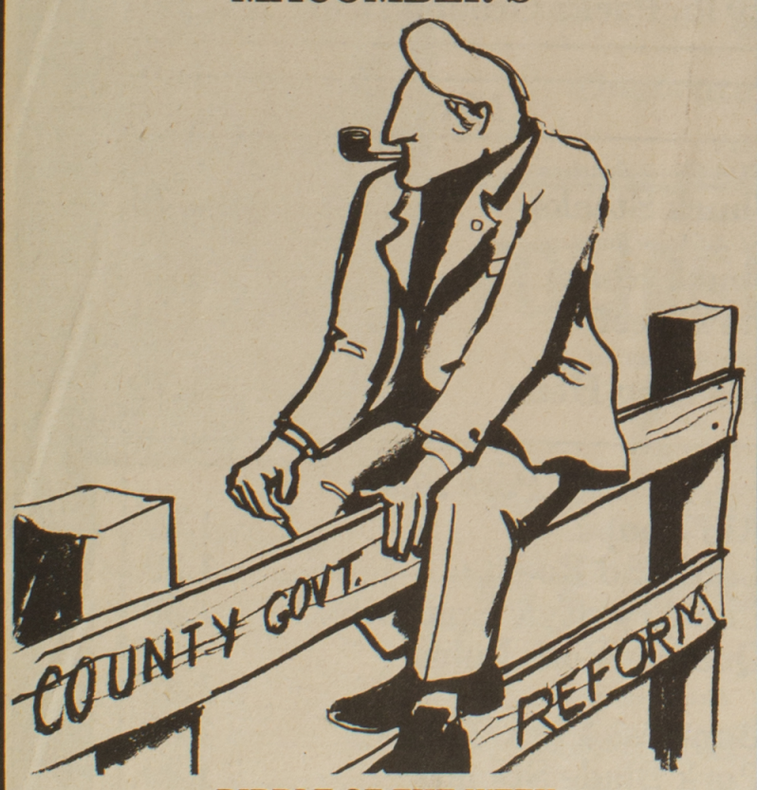
MACOMBER'S



RIDDLE OF THE WEEK

Do you know this man? Of course you do. He's the man who mails out your license tags with his name in BOLD BLACK LETTERS over small case "Island County Auditor" on the envelope. You have to go to him to get your deeds recorded and he even counts your election votes.

You know who he is and know he is a candidate for county commissioner, but DO YOU KNOW WHERE HE STANDS ON THE BIG AND IMPORTANT ISSUES OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT? No! He doesn't say except on the issue of modernizing our out-moded county governmental machinery. There he has taken a firm position "right astraddle the fence." He doesn't favor reform, but he won't fight it if the people bring it about on a "do it yourself" basis.

GLENN MACOMBER, the opposing candidate, has met controversial issues head-on all his professional life, and in important leadership roles as college administrator. He understands county government and will stand up and be counted on controversial issues. Also, he will strive continuously to help bring about a more efficient and responsible county government as Commissioner, Dist. 2.

A VOTE FOR GLENN MACOMBER (Democrat) COMMISSIONER DIST. 2 IS A VOTE FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT FOR ISLAND COUNTY.

Paid for by Glenn Macomber and other interested citizens.

Over The Back Fence

By Dorothy Neil

Apple trees were among the very first fruit trees that Whidbey Island pioneers planted. Old diaries reveal that apple seeds were mailed from Virginia to Whidbey to grow into trees. Slips were taken from growing trees planted by Oregon settlers which were in turn "slipped" to share with more settlers.

In the mid-1890's an Eastern company bought land on North Whidbey and urged settlers to plant prune trees, extolling the merits of that silver-purple fruit. Later, a Mr. McCaslin settled in Oak Harbor to represent a fruit tree and nursery company, and many of the old orchards one sees still bearing about North Whidbey were planted just after the turn of the century.

Two flowering trees we purchased some years ago reverted to the root stock and quit putting out the showy pink blossoms of flowering almond and flowering crabapple. The almond now produces a small yellow plum that is delicious eating, and the crabapple bears a winter apple that will keep under favorable storage for a full 12 months!

Who needs flowers with such an abundance of edible fruit?

A recipe for what Grandmother called "Apple Dumpling" but is more of an "Apple Roll" is a recipe that came from Missouri about 1900. It will serve about 15.

APPLE ROLL

Make a "short" biscuit dough, using 3 cups flour, 1 tsp. salt, 3 tsp. baking powder, 8 rounded tbs. shortening and enough milk to form dough. Sift dry ingredients into bowl and cut in shortening until of meal-like consistency. Add milk, form into ball and roll out on board to a rectangle about 10 x 15 inches. Dot with butter. Chop apples to make about 4 cups, add one-half cup sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Roll up like a jellyroll, pinch together, then cut into one-inch rounds, place in baking pan so that they are just touching. Sprinkle another cup of chopped apple over them, then pour over a mixture of one quart warm water, one-half cup sugar and 4 tbls. cornstarch. The rolls should "float" slightly.

Bake at 375 until tops are lightly brown. Serve with butter sauce if desired, or whipped topping.

BUTTER SAUCE

one half cube margarine
one cup sugar
two cups water
two tbs. cornstarch

Bring to boil over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick.

Woman arrested again in theft

A 19-year-old Oak Harbor woman was arrested Sunday for allegedly stealing groceries from Safeway after a citizen reported seeing the woman bagging food items outside the store, according to Oak Harbor Police.

The citizen told officers at 4:30 p.m. she witnessed the woman bagging her own grocerices outside Safeway and then walking over to Dutch Maid Laundry, Gaalema said.

Police then arrived at the laundromat and arrested the suspect on a third degree theft charge for allegedly taking approximately $55 worth of groceries including three bottles of wine and three cartons of cigarettes, Gaalema said.

She was also arrested on a charge of illegal posession of intoxicants, he said.

The same woman spent over two weeks in the city jail last month after pleading guilty to shoplifting $218 worth of groceries from Mark-It Foods in the same manner, Gaalema said.

Although she had been sentenced to serve 60 days in jail with 30 days suspended and one year probation, the judge indicated he would reconsider her sentence on the condition she make full and complete restitution, Gaalema said.

After she made restitution, the judge then ordered her released from custody, he said.

Oak Harbor

Police blotter

On Wednesday, October 1 Oak Harbor Police received a complaint from a Seattle Times distributor that two days before one of his newspaper carriers had collected a $6.30 check from one of his customers and then attemped to cash an altered $60.30 check at Olympic Bank.

When a bank employee challenged the check, the newspaper carrier, a 12-year-old boy, reportedly fled, according to police sergeant Pete Gaalema.

No arrests have yet been made in the incident which is under investigation.

On Thursday, police received a complaint that sometime during the previous day a $13.50 check placed in a Seattle Post-Intelligencer newspaper box outside a 825 Ave. West residence for a paper boy to pick-up was missing.

The following day a young woman reported she had rented a carpet cleaner from Safeway to clean an office that had been occupied by an attorney. She said she left the carpet cleaner in the office and returned, only to find it missing. The Highway 20 office is now being operated by a real estate company.

Saturday at 1:50 a.m. officers arrested two 19-year-old males on a charge of illegal consumption or possession of intoxicants on 300 Ave. West.

That same day at 1:55 a.m. they arrested a 17-year-old male for alleged illegal consumption or possession of intoxicants and a curfew violation at the corner of 65th N.E. and 925th Ave. East.

And a 22-year-old man was arrested on a charge of possession of less than 40 grams of marijuana while at a traffic stop on 80th N.W. St.

Also on Saturday at 2 p.m. police received a complaint that sometime between 1 p.m. and 1:20 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 1 that someone had opened the back of a camper while it was parked at Sprouse-Reitz on Pioneer Way. An estimated $225 worth of items were reported taken and approximately $20 damage resulted to the door.

That same day at 4:13 p.m. police arrived at a 500 Ave. West residence in response to a woman's complaint that her husband had come to the home in violation of a court restraining order.

The couple were in the process of getting a divorce and the court had ordered him not to visit her, Gaalema said.

Once the 21-year-old husband got inside his wife's residence he allegedly took fishing equipment and cut down a wind chime from the rear of her apartment, Gaalema said.

Police subsequently arrested the man on a charge of violating a restraining order.

Also on Saturday at 11:50 p.m. police arrested a 14-year-old girl in a vehicle outside the Pinball Wizard on a charge of possession of less than 40 grams of marijuana. She was subsequently released to her parents and a referrel was made to juvenile court.

On Sunday at 1:13 a.m. officers responded to a complaint at the Fleet Reserve Association where they learned that sometime between midnight and the time of the report someone had entered three vehicles in the parking lot and taken items from them.

Reported missing from a 1971 Dodge pick-up truck were a sleeping bag, a bunk that fits across the camper shell and a trailer hitch valued at a total $135.

Reported missing from a 1975 Chevy pick-up truck was a brown leather coat and a Navy working uniform valued at $101 total. And reported missing from a 1973 Chevy pick-up truck was a 12 gauge shotgun, a 22 rifle and a set of battery jumper cables.

Police have not been able to determine a point of entry but it appears that someone slipped the locks, Gaalema said.

The department also received a complaint during the early hours of that same day that sometime between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 a.m. Sunday a man left his car parked in the parking lot at the Methodist Church while he went to the Steak House only to return and find a $60 battery removed.

According to Gaalema, the incidences of vehicle thefts and thefts from vehicles have steadily increased during the last six months.

On Sunday at 1:17 a.m. police arrested four teen-agers, two 16-year-old females, a 16-year-old male and a 17-year-old male at the Pinball Wizard for curfew violations. They were referred to juvenile court.

Also on Sunday police received a complaint that sometime the night before or earlier that same day the driver's window of a 1969 Ford Pinto had been broken while it was parked at a house on 105 N.W.

And on Sunday police received a complaint that sometime between 10:45 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday 31 cassettes in a box and an auto parts book were taken from a 1973 Ford Maverick while it was parked at McDonald's. The tapes were valued at $230 and the book was $5. The owner had reportedly parked his car and left it unlocked for five minutes.

'Up-to-elbows' pre-schooler course offered

The Family Life Department of Skagit Valley College is offering a new course for parents, "What to do With Your Preschooler When There's Nothing To Do."

The instructor, Margaret Iverson, uses an "up to your elbows" approach. She has designed the class around experimentation and exploration. The class emphasises low-cost, materials and creative ideas. Areas to be covered include: alternatives to cartoons which will "keep your child out of your hair" before dinner and get them involved in the creative process. The course will be offered Monday evenings 7-9.

There are also plans to begin a new Parent Co-operative Preschool in the Oak Harbor area. Co-operative Preschools involve parents in all aspects of the school's operation. Parents take an active role in locating a building, writing by-laws, establishing tuition, managing the budget, helping plan the school curriculum and hiring a teacher.

Parents are active partners with the teacher in the classroom. The Family Life Department acts in an advisory capacity to establish and maintain the program. If your child was two by August 31 1980 and you would like to be involved in your child's education, Parent Co-operative Preschools may be for you. For further information, contact Janet Thompson at 675-6656.

Sciatica Is Not A Disease

Robert D. Smith, D.C.

Sciatic neuritis, most commonly called sciatica, is a symptom rather than disease. The pain in most cases is due to an inflammation of the sciatic nerve and may extend from the lower back into the thigh, leg and the foot on the affected side.

While sciatica may be secondary to a variety of causes, it is now known that more than 90 per cent of sciatica cases develop as result of vertebral misalignments and structural distortions of the spine. Spinal injuries occurring as result of accidents, falls, sprains, and occupational strains may cause a prolonged pressure on the sciatic nerve root in the spine. The actual pain from the irritated, inflammed nerve may be days, weeks, even months, making its appearance, and when severe, it can indeed be a most painful, crippling disorder.

Modern chiropractic care brightens the outlook for sciatic victims toward complete recovery in a remarkably high percentage of cases. Early chiropractic care and total cooperation with your doctor of chiropractic offers you the best chance for recovery through correction of the underlying cause of sciatica.

Dr. Smith maintains chiropractic offices at 4360 400 AVe. West, Day/Nite 675-8878.

New ambulance may be first purchase

Whidbey voters gave a six-year ambulance levy a strong showing of support in the primary election several weeks ago, but it won't be until 1981 that most of the cost increases will go into effect.

The first spending priority of the levy, which will generate approximately $214,000 of Whidbey General Hospital's 1981 expenditures, is acquisition of a new ambulance, according to hospital administrator Bob Zylstra.

This purchase would enable the Island to be served by two ambulance vehicles at all times, with one available for transporting patients to hospitals outside the county.

Presently, there is just one ambulance covering the south end of the island and one covering the north. If an accident victim must be driven to a Seattle hospital, for example, there is only one "active" ambulance and crew available to respond to all island calls.

The current back-up vehicle is kept at Whidbey General Hospital and is put into use when one of the other two ambulances breaks down. But the 11-year-old vehicle has some deficiencies in meeting state standards, Zylstra said.

One expense of the new levy that is already beginning to be paid for is paramedic training for the emergency medical technicians (EMT's) who work for the ambulance service. It now has two certified paramedics serving largely the north end of the Island.

But as of this week four additional EMT's are receiving training for eventual certification as paramedics.

That means the additional services they will be able to provide, including administering of life-saving drugs and intravenous treatment, can for the first time be offered to those living on the south end of the island.

Before any of the EMT's were ceritifed as paramedics, accident or cardiac victims would have to wait until they arrived at the hospital to receive any medical treatment.

Another improvement in the island's ambulance service slated to go into effect over the next year is installation of a sophisticated radio system inside the ambulances to aid the paramedics in administering medical treatment.

And levy approval will make possible an increase in salary and wages for both the EMT's and paramedics.

"We're trying to get up to a range where we're competitive with other ambulance services," Zylstra explained. "We're considerably below their rates."

Zylstra expressed his appreciation to Whidbey voters who gave the nod of approval to the levy by a 6,349 to 2,700 margin in the Sept. 16 election.

"It's a good indication they want to maintain the quality of service we now have," he said.

Over the next six-year period Whidbey property owners will be levied 25 cents per thousand of assessed valuation. This means a resident with a $50,000 assessed valuation will pay $12.50 a year for the ambulance service.

Feeding time on South Whidbey

Hank Mangis of Clinton used to feed hungry customers at his restaurant, the Village Cafe in Marysville. Today, he gives sustenance to hungry gulls almost every day near the Clinton ferry dock. The gulls make for very satisfied customers.
