The 160th meridian runs between Kauai and Niihau. Follow it down to the equator, and just southeast of the junction you will find Jarvis island, marked, maybe, on your map "Br." (Brilish). Turn west and follow the equator to between meridians 170 and 180, and you come upon first Baker island and then Howland island, both, perhaps, marked "U.S."

come upon first Baker island and then Howland island, both, perhaps, marked "U.S." The littlink used vary in the nupserbright of the perhaps marked "U.S." The littlink used vary in the nupserbright of the perhaps maker. It is easily shown from the files of old envapapers and diaries in Hawaii that long ago these islands were all regarded as American, that the flag was boisted there, that a guano company was organized in Honoluh for their exploitation, and that ships plied regularly back clearing from this port in the same week. What appears to have happened is that following the active period of fetching fertilizer from these islands they full into reglect, seeming to lapse into the non-markland they had formerly been. They were American, but there was no need to press of late these islands on the equator have been to be a full that they had formerly been. They were of late these islands on the equator have become important again. Should Pan American Airways set up its projected Antipodes line they would make convenient way stations or radio centers. The British government is interested and investigation is being made in London as to what is the status of Jarvis, Baker and Howland Islands from the British point of view.

and Howland islands from the British point.
So does the development of Pacific air travel raise the value of small and isolated land masses on the equation and raise also the question as to what initials should stand by them on the map—whether "Br." or "U. S."

The second rule is that "should" or "would" should be used in a second person question, depending on the auxiliary you expect in reply. If you expect someone to reply, If should like you to help me," you ask. "Should you like me to help you."

Now you know the expected reply must be "I should think," so you should ask, "Should you (Copyright) 1998 to 1998.
