

Keynoter photo by HELGA TIENES

A CHARMING house nestled in the shade of a native hammock will be the site of art among the flowers, a free outdoor art and crafts show sponsored by the Upper Keys Garden Club. Visitors can enjoy a day of art and nature from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at the Francis Tracy Garden Center, mile marker 94.

Garden Club plans a show

Theme is on art, nature

TAVERNIER — Art and nature will be combined for a one-day free art show sponsored by the Upper Keys Garden Club.

Planned for 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at the Francis Tracy Garden Center, mile marker 94, the garden club anticipates 70 artists and craftsmen to participate in art among the flowers, a spokesman said.

According to coordinator Jenny Smith, the show will be spread out over the shaded native hammock surrounding the garden center.

"Many local and out-of-town artists already have registered," said Mrs. Smith, "but registration is still open. There is a $20 registration fee payable to the garden club."

Artists already registered include Joe Cella of Key Largo, Ericka Fernandez of Tavernier, Helen Burton of Tavernier, Jo Vasquez of Miami and Islamorada, Marge Wilder of Key Largo, Pat Lewis of Miami, Alma Truax of Homestead and Marie Fisher of Marathon.

In addition to art and crafts, the garden club also is sponsoring a drawing for dinner for two at Erik's Floating Restaurant and brunch at Plantation Yacht Harbor.

And of course, what's a garden club affair without a plant sale?

A wide variety of plants will be put on sale and display by members of the organization.

For registration and additional information, call 852-5775.

Olympians sought

FLORIDA KEYS — All developmentally disabled persons aged 2 years and up are eligible to participate in the Monroe County Special Olympics.

Deadline for entry is Dec. 10 for the games to be held in February.

According to a spokesman, winter residents are eligible and transportation to and from the Key West event will be available.

For more information call Mrs. Burt Frank at 872-2950.