ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Many people have contributed, in a myriad of ways, to the completion and improvement of this study. The following individuals, and their respective institutions, have made collections available, provided photographs used in the following pages, or granted permission for illustration of copyrighted material: Steve Tuthill and Gail Meyers (Temple Mound Museum); Jerald T. Milanich and Elise V. LeCompte-Baer (Department of Anthropology, Florida Museum of Natural History); Jim Miller, Dave Dickel, Calvin Jones, and Louis Tesar (Florida Bureau of Archaeological Research); Remko Jansonius (Historical Museum of Southern Florida); Wm. Jerald Kennedy (Department of Anthropology, Florida Atlantic University); Glen Doran (Department of Anthropology, Florida State University); Alan Bohnert (Southeastern Archeological Center, National Park Service); Gabrielle Vail and Lucy Fowler Williams (University Museum, University of Pennsylvania); Laura Branstetter (South Florida Museum); Gypsy Graves, Sheila Soltis and Kate Yinger (Graves Museum of Archaeology and Natural History, Broward County Archaeological Society); Susan L. Duncan (Historical Society of Palm Beach County); and Bruce Chappell (P. K. Yonge Library of Florida History). Many of these individuals provided not only assistance with collections, but also shared their own knowledge of ancient Florida art with me. Their help and encouragement is greatly appreciated.

Conversations with George Luer have perhaps helped most, not only with ideas and details about Florida art and archaeology, but also with particular directions to take and the ways in which to do so. I greatly appreciate his help and friendship. Other friends and colleagues who have provided help and encouragement include Linda Spears Jester, Ray McGee, James Pepe, Clark Wernecke, Ken Winland, William Hyler, Claudia Kemp, Merald Clark, and Wes Coleman. I also would like to thank my parents for their patient support and encouragement.

The members of my dissertation committee, Michael Moseley, Peter Schmidt, William Marguardt, Lynette Norr and John Scott, have provided helpful comments and encouragement throughout the course of my research and writing. Their assistance is greatly appreciated. I would especially like to thank Dr. Moseley for agreeing to chair my committee.
