Take it with you.

You'll miss it if you leave it behind. You'll find the country calling for it. Think of all the small things that are too delicate to be risked in the ordinary laundry—too delicate in fact, to be washed at all in the ordinary way with soap; you can wash them out easily in your own room.

There's no trouble—no harm to anything. Think of it in the bath, too. It's the Turkish bath—in a shape to be carried about. Ah! We haven't mentioned what it is. It's Pearline, you ought to know it from the description.

You ought to know that it's the rub—rub—rub—in the wash that wears out clothes. You ought to know that Pearline does away with the rubbing. Millions know Pearline—millions use Pearline. Beware of the many imitations. 189 JAMES PYLE, New York.
