

^{BLAZER}
The pocket could then be thus:-

which would be simple & effective in reproduction (using white for Silver yellow for gold)

The Mantling I have shown both in the older manner & also a ribbon design which I much prefer. It has a certain up-to-datedness & I think a better balance than the other.

Dear Henry,

I enclose with the suggestion for arms these few points explaining the changes made. -

No Supporters - I understand they would be unlikely to be granted in any case - and I think are ~~to~~ elaborate and costly to reproduce I have shown therefore a simple design - without them or the base on which they stand.

SHIELD. To be divided 'per CHEVRON' which gives a much better chance to make the charges easily read especially ^{as} the upper portion of the Saltire arrangement cramps the top Lion & the Antlers (attire) of the STAGS.

I think you will agree by comparison that this arrangement is better. - Your Colours RED & BLUE or vice versa remain. - I have used Blue instead of the Black for Devonshire, Pembroke using the red

for the Crest. a simple open Book (proper) on the wreath of Colours SILVER & BLUE (one must be a metal)

The Book bears the school motto - (and or.) it can be placed upon the usual ribbon at Base.

Dear Henry

I enclose with the suggestion for arms these few points explaining the changes made. –

No Supporters – I understand they would be unlikely to be granted in anycase - and I think are to elaborate and costly to reproduce

I have shown therefore a simple design – without them or the base they stand.

SHIELD. To be divided “per CHEVRON” which gives a much better chance to make the changes easily “read” especially as the upper portion of the Saltus arrangement cramps the top lion & the antlers (attire) of the STAGS.

I think you will agree by comparison that this arrangement is better. – Your colours RED & BLUE or vis versa remain. – I have used Blue instead of the Black for Devonshire, Pembroke using the red for the Crest. a simple open Book (proper) on the wreath of colours SILVER & BLUE (one must be a metal) The Book bears the School Motto – (and or.) it can be placed upon the usual ribbon or Base.

The BLAZER could “thus” be thus:-

SKETCH

Which would be simple & effective in reproductions

(using white for silver)

(using yellow for gold)

The mantelling (as wreath colours) I have shown both in the older manner & also a ribbon design which I much prefer.

It has a certain up-to-dateness & I think a better balance than the others.

Kindest Regards

Sincerely
