

EUGENE BUDD

Eugene P. Budd, eighth president of the First National Bank of Red Hook was appointed a director in 1915. He attended De Garmo Institute at Rhinebeck and was graduated from the New Paltz Normal School. For several years he taught school, but later in life took up farming in Red Hook where he owned and operated a 365-acre dairy and fruit farm. He was active in the affairs of his community, a director of Town Mutual Insurance Company, a member of Dutchess County Farm Bureau, Red Hook Grange, a member and charter member of Hendrick Hudson Lodge, F & A.M.

ALLAN B HENDRICKS

Allan B. Hendricks one of the original depositors of the First National Bank of Red Hook and its assistant cashier from 1904 to 1918. A native of Red Hook, he operated a freighting business in Barrytown under the name of Allan B. Hendricks & Co. At one time he conducted the Red Hook Mill, and for over 50 years he represented several insurance companies.

PHILIP STICKLE

Philip H. Stickle, one of the founders and first stockholders of the First National Bank of Red Hook, and one of the early depositors, was born in Red Hook. From young manhood he operated a dairy farm. Besides his farming interests, Mr. Stickle was Town Supervisor for two terms, 1878-1879, Assessor for eight years, Town Auditor for three years, member of the town license board for two years and for many years trustee of School District 5. He was a director of the Town Mutual Insurance Company, a member of the Dutchess County Farm Bureau and of the Poughkeepsie Lodge of Elks.

CHARLES BEEKMAN HOFFMAN

Charles Beekman Hoffman, a native of Red Hook, was president of the First National Bank of Red Hook's board of directors from 1912 to 1921. Educated in the DeGarmo Institute in Rhinebeck in early life he was a farmer. Later he became a clerk in the store of Luckey Platt and Company in Poughkeepsie. He subsequently returned to Red Hook and acted a manager of Hoffman & Co. After a successful business career in Red Hook he retired and occupied himself with the affairs of the bank. Mr. Hoffman had three daughters, Mrs. Allan Scott, and Mrs. L. M. Armstrong and Mrs. Harry Homan.