*Alma Mater, Red Hook Central
We are singing now to thee;
May thy fair name dwell forever
In our fondest memory.
And when high school days are over,
And we leave this school so dear,
We will love thee yet,
We'll ne'er forget
The best school far or near.
Hail, Alma Mater,
We cheer with all our might;
We will sing thy praise
Through endless days,
To the Scarlet and the White.*

DEDICATION

Donald F.
Green

We, the Senior Class of 1950, take much pride in dedicating our senior annual to a person to whom we owe our deepest gratitude. As our class sponsor for the past two years he has shown us much consideration and has been our source of inspiration and closest friend. With his guidance we have attained our highest goals and without his help our much wanted Washington trip would not have been possible. It is in appreciation for all he has done for us, that we dedicate this eleventh edition of Hardscrabble to Mr. Donald F. Green, whom we shall always remember as our guardian and leader.

FOREWORD

WITH this issue "Hardscrabble" enters upon its second decade of existence. It was started by the class of 1940, the first class to spend a year in the new school.

During the days in Hoffman Inn, there were three senior annuals issued by the classes of '37, '38, and '39. These were mimeographed books, with the pictures pasted in place. Members of these classes will well remember what a task that was, but nevertheless they were proud of their results.

With the move into a fine new school building, the class of '40 felt that it should produce a better yearbook, and thereby established a precedent which has been carried on by each succeeding class. As has been explained several times, the name "Hardscrabble" was chosen because it belonged traditionally and exclusively to Red Hook.

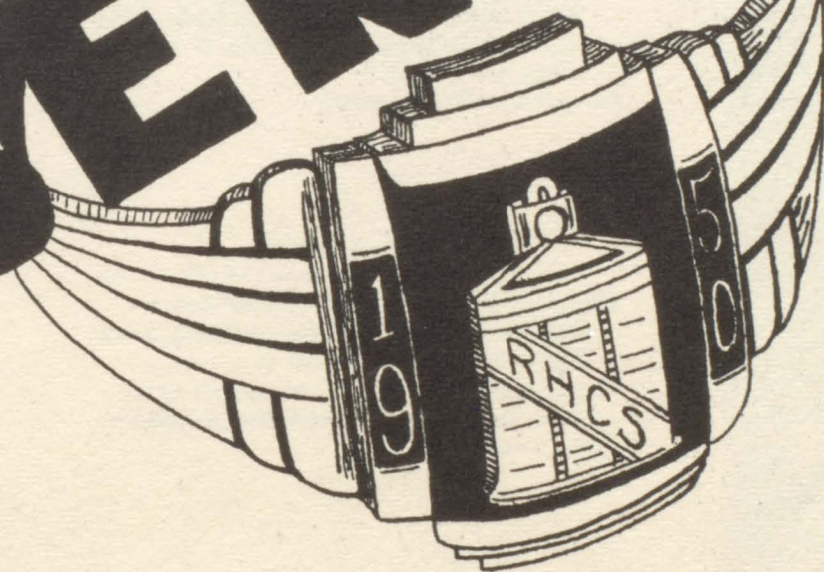

To class of '40 belongs also the credit of starting the tradition of Moving-Up Day. Red Hook was the first high school in this area to celebrate Moving-Up Day, but now many other schools in the county have followed suit.

The first ten years in the new school have seen much progress in many different fields. In size, we have expanded from approximately 500 students to 700, from 29 faculty members in 1939-40 to 40 in 1949-50. We now have two fulltime music instructors, two teachers in the commercial department, six teachers in junior high school instead of two. Student Council has become an active and important part of our school life, growing out of the "Board of Control." The school magazine, "Ditto," has developed from the former "Blotter," and has improved to such an extent that this year it won the "All New York State" award.

What of the next ten years? Some of the lines along which we hope to progress and expand are: a course in driving, more adult education classes, an addition to the school building, providing an auditorium, more classroom, office and storage space, a second kindergarten, greater opportunity for drama and music. As the school grows and progresses, it is our hope that "Hardscrabble," too, will become bigger and better with each year of its existence. Long may it continue!

CLASS POEMS

ONWARD IS OUR AIM

The seniors from Alma Mater's gate
Like the seniors of yore
Shall go to meet their fate
And knock at opportunity's door.
In life's fast mill race,
Some with tears, some with cheers,
Must prepare to keep good pace
To conquer its woes and its fears.
To lead this age, to remove its hate,
Will forever their mission be
As they turn life's page in the book of fate
That they may fulfill their destiny.

—Herman Bookjans

MY CLASS PALS

Here are the names of my class pals,
As they are and ever shall
Be the class that I love best,
The best by every test.

Judy, Jean and Ronald, too,
George, Dick, and Phyllis, true.
Ellen, Michael, Gerald, Bev,
Barbara and Barbara, both at the head.

Mike, Dolores, Jill and Stell
Jim, Herman, Phil, and John,
Norma, and Norma, this isn't a game,
Two in a row, but not the same.

Elmer, Virginia, Pauline, and Joan,
Each a person differently known:
Elmer is quiet, Virginia is loud,
Pauline, jolly, Joan, good and sound.

Diane is Blondie, tall and straight.
Neal, Glenn, and Shirley rate.
Lee, Keith, Joyce, and Berton,
For you there are sweet memories, I'm certain.

Mr. Green, our advisor, head of us all,
You have pulled us through many downfalls.
We often have used your good advice.
Many of us think you are so nice.

Since I am finished with names, I'll say:
It has been fun all the way.
Whether it be rain or shine
Let's keep together at all times.

—Estelle Hawkins

THE CLASS OF 1950 JOINS THE ALUMNI

Down the long, narrow hall he strode, confident, his head held high. But when he reached the heavy door marked 'Alumni' his knees began to shake. This was to be his first entrance into the annals of the alumni. He was seventeen and the alumni's newest member. Could his accomplishments measure up to those of the nine preceding classes that had graduated from Red Hook Central? He hesitated a moment, his hand on the knob. Then quickly, with a smile on his face, the class of 1950 strode in. A wave of silence fell over the Alumni Hall, which had been ringing with heated discussion, as he made his entrance.

"Well, look who's here," said the tough, wiry, spiky-haired, blond class of '43. "What have you to say for yourself?" He grinned. "Bet you never had the times I did at Hoffman Inn such as those helter-skelter class meetings, or rehearsed as I did for my operettas."

"I was never much for disorder, though I did have my share of unruly class meetings as a Freshman and as a Sophomore," said the class of '50 calmly. "But they straightened me out by the time I was a Junior."

"As far as operettas go I never had any, but few people will forget the swell Senior play—'Girl Shy'—that I presented. It was quite a success. Then there were those Freshman and Sophomore plays during assembly programs. The 'Frosh' play even went to Pine Plains, and I doubt if its members have forgotten the mishaps that occurred. Say, that reminds me, as a Junior I had an unusual assembly program working pantomime and silhouettes. No other class ever did that!"

"Speaking of things that no other class ever did reminds me of my trip to the World's Fair," said the heavy-set, bragging class of '40, a wide grin on his face. "Ah, what fun! And no other class can have the honor I did of being the first to graduate from Red Hook Central."

"Hey, wait a minute," cried the pretty, vivacious, redheaded class of '48, a note of distress in her voice. "Your trip to the World's Fair was nothing compared to my Senior trip to New York! Besides, I was the first class to make the Senior Annual pay, and the first to have an Easter Ball."

"And don't forget that I was the first to have a Christmas Ball," put in the tall, shy class of '47, with a toss of her head.

"Well, even that trip to New York was nothing like my trip to Washington," said the class of '50 smoothly. "And as for Annuals, mine has been bigger, with more pictures and new and better features. True, you had the first Easter Ball, but I'll bet it didn't compare to my Christmas Ball. My members will never forget that all but two or three seniors attended, or the good time they had during and after the dance. I made it pay handsomely, too."

He thought a moment. "And here's a real first for you. You folks never sponsored any band concerts. I sponsored two of them, the first Red Hook had had in ages."

"Bet you were so busy making money that you never had the fun I had," said the pert, graceful and popular girl who was the class of '42. "I was the only class to have a Father and Son Banquet, and few of my members will forget our candy sales, those current events contests in Social Studies, or the initiation of the Freshmen."

"Current events contests?" said the dark, questioning class of '41, raising his eyebrow. "You don't know of my debating! I was quite good, too."

"Speaking of Freshmen initiations, I'll never forget mine," vowed the talkative class '42, his mischievous blue eyes lighting up; "I wore hair curlers, cold cream, clothes on backwards and carried my books in pails."

"Well, all the girls who were part of me went around school for a day without any make-up," said the class of '50. "They did it just for fun. Say, you talk about our not having good times together!" he snorted. "How many times I remember a good share of my fellows and girls getting together outside of school. I remember those school picnics only too well. And when I was a Freshman they organized a club and met at different people's houses—just to get together. We had some darn good times!"

He looked around. "And I also remember how much they banded together whenever there was a money-making project on the fire. That's why I earned the reputation I had. None of the underclassmen will forget my dances. My Freshman Dance was a great success, my Sophomore Dance would have been except for the fact that it was snowed out. I know my members felt bad about it but they turned it into a birthday party for Miss Ruby Aiken. My Easter Ball was wonderful—I had the best decorations and the first programs in a long time."

"Yes, and the Junior-Senior Prom that you helped us with had the first programs in a long time, too," said the shy, precise girl who was the class of '49 and only a year older than the class of '50. "But don't forget my Spring Dance as a Sophomore. I had three dances that year. And don't forget that my kids weren't so bad at working together. Why, I won the Best Assembly Award as a Senior."

"I'll never forget how I showed that my group could work together as a team," put in the studious, bespectacled class of '46, his face showing justifiable pride. "I outbid the class of '48 for that chalk drawing of our former principal, Mr. Jones. I was the first class to have him for four years of high school, as well as the first to have no initiation. There was only one thing wrong with my group: the armed forces claimed many of the fellows."

"That's nothing," put in the good-looking freckle-faced class of '45, running a hand through his curly hair. "I was right in the thick of it. I remember the bond drive and all the bonds my group sold."

"Well," frowned the class of '50, "that was before my time, but I'll bet I could have done just as well as you. I remember those two food sales I had as a Sophomore—the only income for my treasury. As a Junior and a Senior, my members sold ice-cream at basketball and football games, and I made almost two hundred dollars on a Turkey Raffle for my Junior Gobble-Hop. And when I was a Senior, I took every prize they had to offer in the school's annual Magazine Sales Campaign."

As he talked, the class of '50 began to feel more and more at ease, as if his accomplishments had topped those of all the others, for they were not looking at him with the cold stares by which he had first been greeted, but rather with a new and profound respect—possibly as the greatest addition Alumni Hall had yet received.

looking ahead with the class of 1950

Making predictions about the future of its members is one of the things that traditionally occupies the graduating class as June draws near. We at Luckey's draw upon eighty-one years of experience to try our hand at making a prediction for the class of '50 as a whole, and it is simply this: the majority of you will find yourselves looking to Luckey's all through life for the things you need for yourself, your families and your home.

EDITOR'S NOTE—It has been an honor for me to be the editor of this new and different 1950 Hardscrabble edition. I enjoyed working with my most efficient staff and would like to personally thank each and every one of them for the hard work that they put into the making of this book. I hope that everyone who reads this book will enjoy it as much as we enjoyed making it, and that they will always remember the class of 1950. This mid-century edition was carefully put together to commemorate the tenth publication of Hardscrabble together with a decade of progress in our school. Again I would like to express my humble appreciation to everyone who helped make this book possible and to my faithful classmates who elected me as its editor-in-chief.
