

Rites Tomorrow For Mr. Hubbard

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow for George Campbell Hubbard, 83, retired fruit and dairy farmer of Upper Red Hook, who died unexpectedly at his home yesterday.

Services will be at the Burnett and Rockefeller Funeral home, Red Hook, at 2 o'clock. The Rev. W. Howard Black, minister of the Wappingers Falls Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be in St. John's Reformed cemetery, Upper Red Hook. Friends may call at the funeral home tonight.

A NATIVE of Springfield, Vt., Mr. Hubbard was born July 29, 1874, the son of the late C. Horace and Carrie Campbell Hubbard. He was graduated from the University of Vermont, class of 1898, and prior to going to Red Hook in 1911, was associated with the Vermont Marble Co., in Proctor, Vt., and with the Oliver Machinery Co., in Vermont.

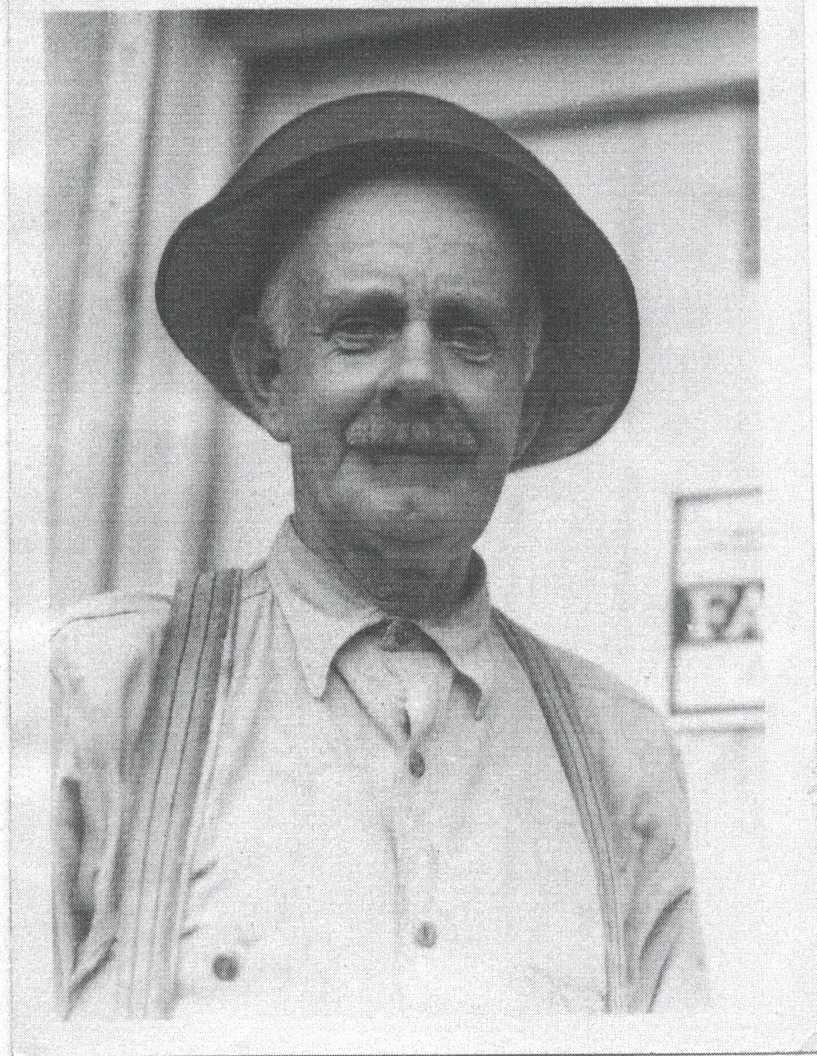

Mr. Hubbard purchased the Irving Coon farm in the Kerley Corners-Elizaville road in 1911 and had operated the farm until 1955. He had continued to reside on the farm with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arvine Bathrick, who now operate it.

Mr. Hubbard and his wife, Mrs. Stella Goodell Hubbard, observed their 45th wedding anniversary last month.

A FORMER DEACON and elder of St. John's Reformed church, Upper Red Hook, Mr. Hubbard also had been a member of the Board of Education of Upper Red Hook some years ago. He was a member of the Red Hook Grange, the Dutchess County Farm bureau, the Society for the apprehension and Detection of Horse Thieves and formerly was secretary of the Eastern New York Holstein-Friesian association.

Surviving, in addition to his wife, are two daughters, Mrs. Bathrick and Mrs. Anthony Caccamo, who is the wife of a Wappingers Falls art teacher; two granddaughters, Dorothy Susan Caccamo; five grandsons, David Caccamo, Robert and Bruce Bathrick, Red Hook, Donald Bathrick, Utica, and Richard Lane, Williamsville, and five nephews and a niece. Another daughter, Mrs. Carol Lane, died in 1955.

1920 Prize Get Bull Died At Marblehead

George C. Hubbard's Netherland Artis Pontiac Winana, who headed Sorosis Farms herd succeeded by that bull's best son

Admirers of the Black and White will be sorry to learn of the death of the big Hubbavale bull who took first prize for purebred sire and three of his get last year. Mr. Hubbard sold him shortly after the fair to the Sorosis Farms, Marblehead, Mass., of which A. E. Lilth, maker of the Sorosis shoes, is owner. Owing to an accident in his intestinal tract he met an untimely death early last spring.

County Fair signs removed from Highways this week—Fair not business operated for profit

In advertising the County Fair signs were tacked on trees along the highways throughout the county. These signs were thus placed with the permission of the State Highway Department.

On Thursday Troopers Carey and Sleds tore from the trees on the Creek road from Poughkeepsie to Wurttemburgh, the signs. Not alone did they remove them from trees on the public highway, but entered upon private property, it is charged, and

Another Auto Smash On Astor Flats

Occupants of Ford car hurled into bank when struck by runabout Wednesday night—No one seriously injured

Two men, said to be jockeys employed at Saratoga, and two other men, John Zoeller, of Richmond Hill, Long Island, the owner of the runabout in which they were riding, and William Murphy, of Bayview Hotel, Aqueduct, Long Island, were coming southward over the Astor Flats on Wednesday night when their car struck a Ford machine throwing it in the ditch. The Ford was being driven by Winthrop Little, of Newberry Port, Mass. Miss Dow, the owner of the car and Mrs. Chester G. Munter were both slightly injured, receiving medical attention here.

Fortunately Corporal Houghtaling of the State Constabulary was passing over the Astor Flats in the rear of the cars that collided and he hastened after the runabout, overtaking it south of this village.

The men were taken to Poughkeepsie and after arranging for the payment of repairs to the Ford car were allowed to go on their way as the occupants of the Ford car declined to file a complaint against them. The damaged car was towed to the Hub Garage for repairs.

The front of the machine was badly damaged and the fender bent from crashing into a bank alongside the highway. Within a few feet of the

He was a noble animal and so intelligent and tractable that he had won the heart of his owner and all who had to do with him, so much so that the day he died the Sorosis Farms wired Mr. Hubbard of his untimely end and requested prices on his best son.

Mr. Hubbard thinks a good deal of his Holsteins and when he got the message he told his wife and three little girls to get ready while he got the Baby Grand Chevrolet in order and soon the Hubbards of Hubbavale were enroute to the mighty Netherlands funeral.

Arriving at Marblehead Mr. Hubbard was so much impressed with the kingly throne his bull had had standing at the head of two long rows of splendid cows who were the picture of peace and contentment in their bedded stalls behind shining nickle rails that he decided to part with the big bull's best son, Hubbavale Wana De Kol, Netherland, who is like his sire only better in form, constitution and refinement to which he comes as to the Manor born being a son of that Hubbavale con Aaggie Manor De Kol, whose descendants have won so many prizes and whose daughters took first place at the head of eleven cows, all show animals, last year; and whose son, full brother to Netherland Junior stood 3d in the first Brentwood sale prize contest at Philadelphia.

Mr. Lilth liked the description of the young bull and the deal was closed for him and four of his heifer calves who could not now be bought for several times the purchase price which was a princely one.

George Hubbard, the owner of Hubbavale at Red Hook, says that the inspiration gained from competing for prizes at the Dutchess County Fair has done much toward helping to develop his herd to this point that he could merit this sale. He will exhibit twenty head at the fair next week, including the bull calf which he bought at Philadelphia at the second Brentwood sale last spring for $1,375, at four months of age and whose value has greatly increased, as his dam is doing exceptionally well on yearly test.

ducers. This bull, at 9 months took the first prize at the Poughkeepsie fair, and is as straight and tippy today as them—large boned, rugged, open-jointed and distinctly a milky animal.

Besides the Aggie Manor De Kol family of five generations at Hubbavale there are three generations of four other families and the foundation cow, for three of these were originally in the herd and the younger generations of all five families are related through the sire.

When the herd was purchased in 1913, in Vermont, no A. R. O. work had been done. Mr. Hubbard's first work was to develop the eating capacity and stretch out the bowels and the results have been most gratifying. All have good records and are right in line for steady increases.

Last year a 1-year 9-month, 21-day heifer made 402 lbs. milk, 18 lbs. butter in 7 days and her mate at 2 years, 29 days made 394 lbs. milk, 17 lbs. butter in seven days and both are due to freshen again as 2-year-olds.

This all shows how well worth while it is for Dutchess breeders to develop by A. R. O. work and remain in their herd their best, and how well suited our Dutchess cattle are to the development of heavy producing Holsteins.

breeder offered $6,000 for her, but Mr. Hubbard's answer was the five for line as well as inbreeding thereby intensifying their strong line of economical production, for Aggie's family before her has even been known as economical pro-

Five generations in one family are not to be found in many herds, even among the large breeders, and especially with the foundation cow having an A. R. O. record of 662 lbs. with 30 lbs. of butter in seven days; 2,639 lbs. milk, 117 lbs. butter in thirty days.

The D. W. Field Farm Company, of Brockton, Mass., tells of the distinction of eight families of three direct generations of 30-lb. cows. Who shall say that in the near future Dutchess County will not have five living generations of 30-lb. or better cows, all in the Hubbavale herd, owned by George C. Hubbard at Red Hook.

The second generation, Lady Manor Hengerveld, 157,425, made 459 lbs. milk, 24 lbs. butter from June 1, to 7, when for three days the thermometer ran from 117 to 119 degrees. Lady Manor Hengerveld 2nd, 216,338, who traces to Field Colantha Johanna Lad, already has at 4 years 4 months, 523 lbs. milk, 24 lbs. butter in seven days; 2,038 lbs. milk, 96.8 lbs. butter in 30 days, and her daughter, Hubbavale Aggie Manor Lyons, 324,667, made from June 1 to 7, this year, 370 lbs. milk, 18 lbs. butter, and is the dam of a very fine white heifer. Shortly after this 3-year-old heifer made her record, a prominent Hubbardale Holstein Bull Calf Which Has Gone to Pacific Coast.

A bull calf consigned by George C. Hubbard, of Hubbavale Farm, Red Hook, topped the Sisson sale of pure bred Holsteins in Poughkeepsie recently. The bull goes to F. A. Heroux, owner of the Buena Alta Herd, of Modesto, California, which has recently won distinction by winning prizes in the show rings of California in competition with the best herds.

The sire's dam, Statia De Kol, 92907, is another great cow of wonderful natural capacity, who has an official record of 31.32 pounds of butter 543.3 pounds of milk in seven days. Her dam, Stella De Kol Wayne, who will be thirteen years old in August, has just made 24.45 pounds of butter 402 pounds of milk in seven days, first time over tested. A wonderful record from an old undeveloped cow and her owner says she is still coming.

All the above named cows have great capacity, are hearty feeders and economical producers. The bull calf, who is in just good growing order, weighs 445 pounds at five and a half months of age and inherits the strong hearty qualities of his parentage. He is deep bodied, has a loose, thin skin, covered with hair like silk. He has milk veins and milk wells like a heifer, is open jointed and shows the large capacity and other qualities of the best dairy type.

Mr. Heroux counts himself fortunate in securing this young bull whose dam and sire's dam records average 30.7 pounds of butter, 574.9 pounds of milk in seven days, and Mr. Hubbard is well pleased that this splendid representative of the Hubbavale A. R. O. Holsteins is to be one of the pioneer herd sires in the great state of California.

In entering this bull for Sisson's sale Mr. Hubbard wrote, "I want to keep this bull near home, hence am offering him here" while in proof that if you produce quality the world will find you out, this bull goes way to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Hubbard owns one of the choice Holstein herds of Dutchess County. His cows are closely related and of exceptionally good quality and even type. Another of his thirty pound cows, Aggie Manor De Kol, whose picture is shown, has a record of 30.07 lbs butter, 669 pounds of milk in 7 days. She has three A. R. O. daughters. One of them who has a twenty-pound senior three year old record, has a 21.5 pounds junior three year old daughter who in turn has a very promising yearling daughter, making four generations in the one family in this herd at Hubbavale.

Hubbavale is the name of the farm which is located just north of Upper Red Hook, one mile east of the State road on the road to Elizaville. The Holsteins carry the name Hubbavale and the quality apples which are grown on the hillsides are bringing fame as Hubbavale quality apples. Holsteins in the valley and apples on the hillside suggest peace and plenty.

The name Hubba comes from the old North Sea King Hubba, who conquered a part of England in the sixth century and is supposed to be the progenitor of the Hubbard family, of which Mr. Hubbard is of the tenth generation in this county.

Mr. Hubbard, who was raised on a Vermont hill farm, "hill-born, free-born", was graduated from the Vermont Agricultural College in the class of '98. Owing to the depression in agriculture of those days, he landed with the Vermont Marble Company and later in the woodworking machinery business, opening an office in New York City in 1905, as Eastern Manager of the Oliver Machinery Company, of Grand Rapids. In the Fall of 1911 he bought one of the best apple and dairy farms in Dutchess County and in 1913 purchased a carload of pure bred Holsteins near his native Vermont town and thereby laid the foundation for success with the black and white beauties.

The Sisson sales suggest the possibilities of Poughkeepsie as a Holstein center. Our rail shipping facilities are good and our splendid boat service up and down the Hudson offer cheap, sure and quick transportation of the valuable pure bred stock. The Hudson Valley is becoming noted far and wide for apples of quality and flavor. Why not make it noted for herds of splendid Holsteins. Holsteins for Winter work and apples as major Summer work make a practical, efficient business proposition.
