

Firehouse

RHHG: The original building was built as a private home (1850) for R.B. Nicks, one of the owners of the tobacco factory. It was opened as a firehouse with an addition in 1966. Red Hook is one of the few communities to have volunteer fire protection by a private company rather than a municipal one.

RHHWT: Later became the home of Sittingham, the office of Dr. Vigeant, and finally, in 1949, a firehouse (with an addition in 1966). It now serves as a site for small businesses.
