SENIOR CLASS

of

Red Hook Central School

Red Hook, New York

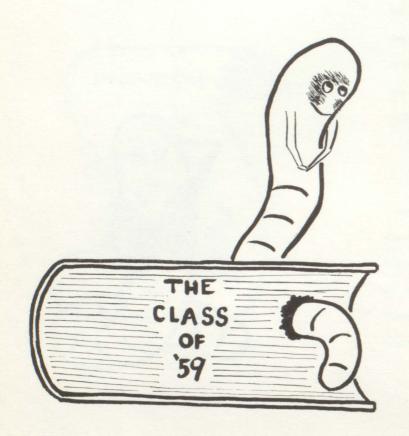

WE SALUTE Mrs. Kipp for her long years of service to our school and our community and her patient understanding and help to us in undertaking our class suppers. As we go through life we will remember her patience and cheerfulness, in the kitchen and out. We are happy to dedicate this, the 1959 HARDSCRABBLE, to her.

WE SALUTE Mrs. Wilken for her continued guidance and her patient understanding of our class, as our advisor for four years. As we go through life we will remember her and try to live up to her unfailing belief in us. It is with great pleasure and true appreciation that we dedicate this, the 1959 HARD-SCRABBLE, to her.

don't show myself to the reader of the book I'm munching. My name is MUNCHET.

I've lived in the library at R. H. C. S. for a long time. When the class of '59 moved their homeroom into the library, I sort of took up living with them. I figure I'm really going to miss them when they graduate, so instead of staying in the books in the library where I'll miss them more each day, I've moved right into their yearbook...

I'll say one thing...it looks mighty tasty.

ADMINISTRATION

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Our living space, known as Planet Earth, continues to shrink, figuratively speaking, as communication and travel times decrease each year. Yesterday's newspapers stated that we are now only about four hours away from our Pacific coast when we ride in our new jet airliners which are coming into operation. Our Latin-American neighbors are nearly as close as this in time, and in the next decade our European and Asiatic neighbors will be as close to us as an early breakfast and lunch. An entirely new concept of space on earth is now a fact. Distances are no longer described in miles, but in hours of flying time.

Different races and varying cultures, developed through centuries of isolation, one from the other, are now being thrown into close proximity. We will soon live in as close contact, timewise, with Arab, Indian, Russian, and Japanese, as we did formerly with persons who lived a few miles distant. This fact has brought the great differences between races and cultures into sharp focus, with resultant conflicts and misunderstandings. We, and the other peoples of our earth, are poorly prepared for this comparatively sudden need for neighborliness, understanding, and racial tolerance. Even within the confines of our own small national area, where we are all Americans, racial understanding is difficult.

As you, the members of the Class of 1959, of the Red Hook Central School, reach out for your places in the future, remember to practice tolerance and understanding toward men of other races and creeds. It will be through tolerance and cooperation that the human races can prevent conflict and degradation on earth. Then we can look forward hopefully to the successful exploration of space beyond earth's confines.

The staff and faculty advisor of HARDSCRABBLE, and the members of the Class of 1959 and their advisor, have earned our congratulations for a task well-done. Your teachers have labored with you to reach your crowning achievement of graduation from high school. Your part of the future is in your hands. May tolerance and wisdom be yours as you carry on our efforts for a better world.

ANNE SMITHIES

MICHAEL LARSON

Red Hook's Exchange Student this year is Anne Smithies, from Brewood, England, who has been living with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilken and family.

Anne says, "By living and learning with you all I have experienced many wonderful things. But one fact is outstanding we could understand and have understood each other. I can only wish each one of you, especially the Senior Class, success in everything you attempt, and also for the future of the A.F.S. program here in Red Hook, that more people may enjoy and learn from it."

Last summer Michael Larson spent the summer in Italy under the A.F.S. program as Red Hook's second Exchange Student. He spent the summer in Rimini where he had a most interesting and enjoyable eight weeks as a member of the Baldassarri family. Of his trip, Michael says,

"As I look back over the past summer and remember all of the experiences that befell me, I can safely say that anything that happens can do nothing but add to one's knowledge of a country and humanity as a whole. My weeks in Italy gave me a greater understanding of a foreign people and how they live."
