EARLY SETTLEMENT AND BURIAL GROUND

Clara Losee corresponded with James L. Teator in 1977. His father, Frank L. Teator had owned the frame and stone house (Kramer/Cramer/Aaron Shook) across the creek from the Echo Valley dutch barn. He said that the original stone house was built by brothers F.R. and E.K. Kramer in 1794 and consisted of one room with two rooms upstairs. In 1801 one additional stone room was added and several of frame construction with wattle and daub infill. Frank L. Teator tore the house down himself in 1920 as it had fallen into disrepair. He found two date stones in the process. The date stones were placed in the foundation on the west side of the new house built by Teator. He didn't know anything about the burial ground, and didn't have pictures of the stone house BUT Clara Loses apparently sent him one.

A 1 September 1899 Red Hook Journal article by General John Watts dePeyster talks about the Kramer house and burial ground. "The burial ground is in the corner of a farm lot—where the figures 376 appear on the map of the Township of Red Hook, N.Y., F.W. Beers, N.Y. 1867—alongside the road leading east from the old stone farm house now known as that of Aaron Shook, which stands on the west shore of the Saw Kill stream, near the old bridge crossing it….The oldest date we found was H.M. Anna 1736…the latest 1792…There are about 15 or 20 graves more or less distinctly visible, some have headstones and foot stones, some only a headstone, some no stones at all…The Kramer house must have been built before the burial ground was first used and therefore earlier than 1736…"

Woody Klose wrote to the University of the State of New York Education Department in 1977 looking for information on the gravestones. Charles Gehring in Manuscripts and Special Collections said that the inscriptions are in German. John L. Scherer, Associate Curator- History said that they appear to be Dutch.

Red Hook Journal.

Red Hook, N. Y.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1899.

The Oldest House and Burial Ground in the Township of Red Hook.

How little is known of its past in this Town. Driving along past the very old stone house, on the west bank of that beautiful stream, the Sawkill, which, after crossing the Post Road north of Red Hook and flowing through Annandale, empties after a series of romantic cascades into the Hudson, well, about an eighth of a mile to the east of it, there is a remarkable doubtless forgotten burial ground.

We had passed it a number of times without taking any note of it. There are the distinct tumuli of at least twenty graves and there may have been more because the mounds over a number of others seem to show indistinctly. The gravestones, or whatever are intended to represent them, are not regular memorials fashioned by a stone-cutter but flakes of stone, picked up or ploughed out, projecting not over a foot, on an average, out of the ground—flakes of the common stone of the neighborhood. Doubtless they all bore inscriptions but the only ones which was at all distinct still show the dates of 1736 and 1745.

Doubtless there were many more graves because there is a pile of such flakes exactly like those standing as head stones, thrown into a pile at the foot of an old tree.

This burial ground is in the corner of a farm lot—where the figures 376 appear on the map of the Township of Red Hook, N.Y., F.W. Beers, N. Y., 1867—alongside the road leading east from the old stone farm house now known as that of Aaron Shook, which again stands on the west shore of the Saw Kill stream, near the old bridge crossing it.

This dwelling is said to be one of the oldest landmarks in the town and when it was built no one appears to know. On a lintel over one of the windows on the south side of main stone building, quite a nice construction, even for to-day, is inscribed F. R. & E. K. Kramer (Kramer Brothers) 1694. 1794

As one of the flakes representing a tombstone at the head of one of the neglected graves bears the date 1745. It is very likely the Shook house was built many years before that. If so, it is very questionable if any other house in the township or district was erected at an earlier day.

It is greatly to be feared that this burial ground will soon be entirely undiscoverable unless some permanent memorial is erected or a fence constructed about it. It will doubtless eventually share the fate of the once extensive burial ground about the site of the Second Manor Church, known as the Pijk Bosch (Pine-Tar-Wood), a mile or two above Blue Store, on the original Post Road thence to Johnstown. Years and years ago the plough had already greatly encroached upon the space originally filled with graves although those were marked with regular tombstones both of slate and also of sand stone, if memory serves.

The First Manor Church covered the original vault or burial place of the Livingston family. It must have been a mean building of wood and was allowed to go to destruction many, many years ago and the vault was exposed to sacrilegious despoilment. More than two generations since it was said that the materials of the dilapitated building over the vault were sold by a Livingston, removed and partly incorporated in the Pijk Bosch Church which was an octagon or some such shape. This in turn became dilapitated.

Finally the present the Third Manor Church was built on the shore of Roeliff Jansen's Kill, southeast of the Blue Store and northeast of Clermont village, where the road from Union Corners, past the Twin Ponds bifurcates, one branch, to the right, leading to Weaver's Hollow and the other, to the left, towards the Blue Store.

Mrs. Johnson nee Livingston started a subscription to build the present church over the old family vault near Linlithgow or Staatje and Mr. Harmon Livingston completed it.

All this about the Manor Church however is tradition related nearly a half century since but the fact about the neglected burial grounds is the result of a visit to the spots.

According to "a Survey of the roads of the United States of America" by Christopher Colles, 1789, "Poughkeepsie to Albany," page 22, after leaving Rhinebeck Meeting House [Stone Church] about the 102 mile stone from New York, there is only one house, Tater's, on the Post Road; between the 103 and 104 mile stones but one house, Jacobs; at the crossing of a stream, just south of the 105 mile stone, one house, Cole; just north of 106 mile stone, one house, Thomass, which seems to be designated as a tavern. This house is now owned by Dr. John E. Losee and it was a famous tavern during the Revolution.

This precinct in 1789 was known as Red Hook, and is said to have taken its name from the red-brick tavern of Thomass'. Near the present Dutch Reformed Church, stood the house of Major Van Ness, part of which is still standing. He was dubbed General Van Ness, was postmaster of Red Hook, moved to Hardscrabble, which then first became Red Hook, a title which honestly belongs to the present Upper Red Hook. North of Major Van Ness was the Heerman house and north of it again near the 107 mile stone the Schermerhorn house.

North of that there is no house marked down except Mingle, near the 109 mile stone. There is a Johnson house near the 111 mile stone. Beyond that, to the 121st mile stone there is no designation of the mark of a building i. e. designated by an owners name.

It is not to be perceived that Smith in either of his books makes the slightest reference to the old burial ground which Dr. Carroll and myself have discovered nor to the adjoining house.

The oldest date we found was H. M. Anno 1736; the next 1740; the next 1755; the next 1755 Aven B.; the next 175— WIF (perhaps WIFE); the next 1768, GERT. FIL—B; the next 1769 N I. Died; the next 1776 D. E.; the next Jan. 20, 1779; the next 1792 E. S.; the latest 1792, Anna Maria Schmuck.

There are a number of other stones but the inscriptions cannot be deciphered and many of them are broken. They are simply irregular flakes picked up loose and not cut memorial stones.

There are about 15 or 20 graves more or less distinctly visible, some have headstones and foot stones, some only a headstone, some no stones at all.

There are four distinct headstones lying at the foot of an adjacent tree and a number of broken flakes.

It must be borne in mind that this Colles map of the Post Road does not pretend to give any information in regard to settlements ½ of a mile either on one side or the other of the Post Road.

The Kramer house must have been built before the burial ground was first used and therefore earlier than 1736 and the stone house now occupied by ——Redder, half a mile west of the 106th mile stone, on the road to Tivoli and White Clay Creek, is said to have been constructed in 1745 but there is no proof of it.

Dear Mr. Klose:

I have studied the two tombstone inscriptions you sent with interest. I have also consulted others more knowledgeable in German. They are indeed tombstone inscriptions and appear to be in Dutch.

I have made xerox copies of the inscriptions and have added my comments on them. Please find them enclosed. I am also sending copies to Charles Gehring at the State Library. He has been translating the Dutch manuscripts in the State Library, and probably will be able to tell you more about what the inscriptions actually say.

I hope this information will be useful and that at least a few of your questions have been answered.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Klose:

Mr. John L. Scherer has referred to me your letter concerning two tombstone inscriptions. They appear to be German and not Dutch, but there simply is not enough information to say exactly. My reason for deciding that they are German is the word ALD which is German alt "old", whereas Dutch would be oud.

I am making my notations directly on the xeroxs sent to be by Mr. Scherer.

Dear Mr. Gehring:

Thank you for your painstaking attempt to decipher what apparently is indecipherable.

The inscriptions were not obtained by rubbing the stone, but just by eyesight. They are very legible, except where "illegible" is noted. Thus, my confusion at nobody being able to decipher them. You are in good company. The Smithsonian would not even take a crack at it, the American Museum would not take a crack at it, nobody tries.

I would be delighted to show these stones to you in person if you are interested. Anything you can do to shed light on this interesting mystery would be most appreciated.

Cordially,

Dear Mrs. Losee:

My father, Frank L. Teator, to whom you recently wrote with regard to the old house on Echo Valley Road, has discussed your inquiry with me and asked me to respond to your letter.

As he is interested in preserving the history of the Red Hook region, as I am, he was most interested in your project and wanted to be of help in anyway that he could. Being 82 plus years of age, and the data you seek occurring many years hense, I suggested that he take a week to ten days and simply jot down remembrances as they came to him - hense this somewhat late reply to your letter. The following, then, is my father's recollection and I should tell you he has a crystal clear mind.

The old stone and frame house, of which you speak, was built by F. R. & E. K. Kramer. It was originally constructed of stone in 1794 and consisted of one large room with two bedrooms on the second floor. In 1801 one additional room of stone, and several rooms of frame construction with mud walls were added. He believes all of the stone was quarried on the farm itself.

Apparently no significant improvements were make between 1801 and 1920 and the house was , by that time, in very bad repair. In 1920 my father himself tore down the house. In so doing he discovered two seperate stones bearing the aforementioned dates - the earlier date coming from a stone from the original portion - the other coming from the 1801 stone addition. (He is very certain of each of these dates).

The stone from the old house, or part of it at least, was used in the construction of the new house which exists today. The two stones with the engraved dates were placed in the foundation of the west side of the new house.

My father regrets that he knows nothing of the burial ground across the stream on what is now the Klose farm, nor does he have any pictures of the old house or surroundings. If you require return of the picture of the old stone house he will be pleased to return same to you, but if not, he would appreciate keeping same as a memento.

He wishes to thank you for allowing him to be of help.

Sincerely,

James L. Teator

Next we visited the Klose farm on Echo Valley Road. Tibbie Klose was our host. We registered it:

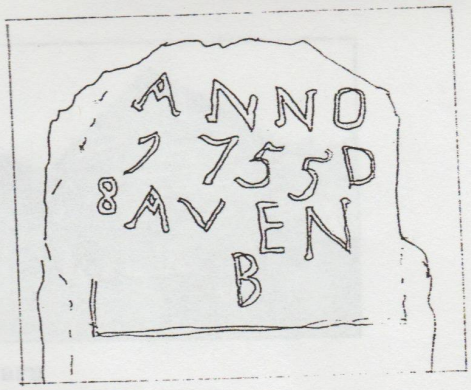

> --/Klose house and barn complex (ny/du/re/0008), coordinates, N 42'00.076, W 073'51.280, 25' accuracy, 236' elevation.

This site has a two story frame house with a stone smoke-house/bake-oven extension off the back, also two large side entrance barns and sheds. There is an early Dutch barn across a stream (name?) to the west:

Dated Stone
--/Klose house and barn complex
Red Hook, Dutchess Co., NY
(ny/du/re/0008),

We felt the Dutch barn was part of the same farm. The large side entrance barns of the first farm have been recently constructed from reused timbers and one of a frame moved from Fleishmans, Ulster County, in 1999 to replace a barn that burned. We did no measurements but noted a 1755 dated stone that Tibbie said came from a nearby gravel pit. She has some other dated stones we did not see. The smoke house has a false panel door with early hardware. The present house no doubt contains an earlier one.

We took basic measurements of the Dutch barn that began as a 4-bay scribe-rule barn reconstructed with a 2-bay addition probably in the early 19th century. It contains many re-used parts. Especially interesting is its non symmetrical transverse plan with the cow aisle measuring 9.5-feet wide and the horse aisle 10.5-feet. There is also a difference in side wall height.

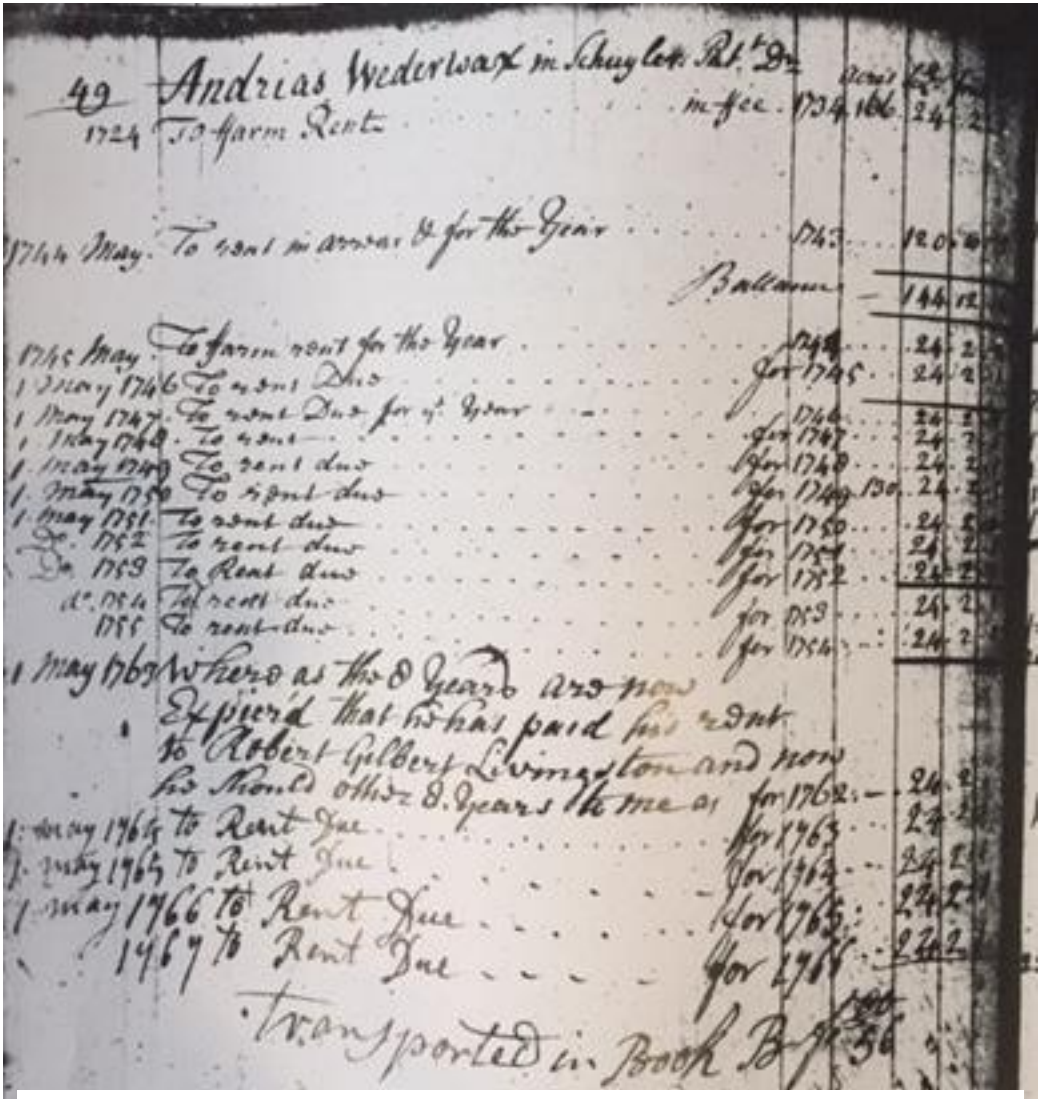

It would be worthwhile to do a better documentation of the barn frame and especially of some of the reused parts that show manger evidence. One of the reused columns contains a series of angled holes set 3-inches apart that suggests it was originally horizontal and served as a hay rack but its length, 21'4", does not fit the normal Dutch barn plan. There is a hay barrack plate resting on the anchorbeams at the back of the barn that should be documented and perhaps saved as an artifact. It has a rare surviving end that indicates how the barrack plates were joined.

Who is buried in the field on the north side of Echo Valley Road is not clear.

In about 1725, Henry Beekman acquired the southern third of the Schuyler Patent. He began renting unsurveyed parcels of land immediately, and kept detailed account books. Many of the names in the ledgers are on the first labeled maps in 1850.

A reasonable assumption would be that the gravestones are for the early Beekman tenants- the time frame is consistent, burials commencing in the 1730s- but there was no church. The 34 Palatine refugee families who settled at the Rhinebeck Flatts had a union church of Lutheran and Reformed congregations from 1715 to 1729, when the precursor to the Stone Church was built. There was a church and burying ground about three miles away, why were these people buried here?

Based on the date stone in the basement of the main house at Echo Valley Farm, which certainly came from a more modest structrure on the property. "MP CP 1745" is almost certainly Michael Wendell Pulver.

finishing the plans for ex-President Harrison's summer residence in the Adirondack Mountains. He married Elizabeth Risedorf. (10) Sarah E., born October 23, 1864, completes the family. On April 28, 1897, she married John E. Forshay, a carpenter by trade, of New York City. They were all born and educated in the town of Amenia, Dutchess county.

Zebaniah Howard, the grandfather of Mrs. Cronk, was a native of the town of Dover, and engaged in farming from youth until his death, conducting a good farm which he owned on Chestnut Ridge. In religious belief he was a Friend. By his marriage with Miss Lydia ——— he had the following children: John, Charles, Sylvester, Valirie, Pontius, Edward and Silas.

The birth of Silas Howard, the father of Mrs. Cronk, occurred in the town of Amenia, but most of his life was passed in Fishkill town, and throughout his life he followed the profession of teaching, being one of the able instructors of the county. By birthright he was a member of the Society of Friends. He was united in marriage with Miss Amelia Cash, daughter of David and Amelia Cash, farming people of Columbia county, N. Y. They became the parents of nine children, namely: William, born August 15, 1809, married Paulina Storms; Rachel, born May 28, 1811, married Isaac Harrington; Aaron, born March 26, 1813, married Harriet Sweet; David, born February 21, 1815, married Caroline Sweet; Silas, born December 21, 1816, married Catharine Odell; Asa, born September 24, 1819, married Jane Northrop; Lydia, born August 29, 1821, married John Ulrich; Emeline, wife of our subject, is next in order of birth; and Elizabeth, born February 28, 1828, married Joseph Martin.

John Wilson Pulver (1830-1915)

JOHN W. PULVER, a well-known business man of Millerton, Dutchess county, and the proprietor of extensive bottling works, was born July 23, 1830, at Red Hook, Dutchess Co., N. Y., where his ancestors were among the pioneer settlers. His grandfather, David Pulver, was a native of the same place, and became a successful farmer there, owning a tract of land near the old post road between Upper and Lower Red Hook, now belonging to Mr. Coons. David Pulver was a substantial citizen, influential in local matters, and prosperous in business. In addition to his farming, he engaged largely in the breeding of running horses. He died in 1842, and his wife, formerly Catherine Simmons, died in Red Hook, in 1836. They had seven children: David, Henry, Peter and Zachariah (twins), Anna (Mrs. William Fredenburgh), Peggy (Mrs. John Witherwax), and one who died in infancy.

Zachariah Pulver, our subject's father, was born at the old home at Red Hook, in 1793, and lived there until 1835, following farming as an occupation. He and his brother, Peter, made their home together for sixty years, and married two sisters, the daughters of Philip Teeter, a leading citizen of the town of Milan, and a descendent of a German family. Peter's wife's name was Maria, and Zachariah's wife's name was Catherine. A few years after marriage they moved to Columbia county, and bought a farm of 209 acres in the town of Chatham, adding to it later until the farm contained about 300 acres. Zachariah Pulver was a strong Democrat, and a leading official of the Lutheran Church, of which this family have been members from early times. He died in 1873, his wife surviving him fourteen years. They had five children, of whom two are now living. Mary died in infancy; Catherine at the age of three, and David Henry in 1874. The survivors are John W., our subject; and Elizabeth A., who married Lewis Smith, of Chatham, New York.

The subject of our sketch received a good English education in the district schools of the town of Chatham, and was especially noted for his ability as a mathematician, being considered the best in Columbia county. His brother David also possessed the same powers to an unusual degree. Mr. Pulver left school at the age of sixteen, but he has been an unwearied reader and is well informed upon general topics. He remained at home until he was twenty-two years old, and then took charge of a farm belonging to his father, in Rensselaer county, and three years later he moved to another at the head of North Chatham Village, where he remained eleven years. He then sold out to a brother and removed to Nassau, Rensselaer county, and engaged in the milling business in a rented mill. Later he bought the property and formed a partnership with Mr. Davis, the owner; but this venture proved unfortunate, and he sold his interest to Mr. Davis before a year had elapsed. The following year he was in partnership with E. M. Crum in the mow-

John W. was 5 when they moved away.

I. MICHAEL WENDELL PULVER was born in Rengsdorf, Neuwied, Wied, Rheinland-Pfalz, in 1705 emigrating from the Palatinate region of what is now Germany, by way of England, with his parents- Johan Wendell Pulver and Anna Catherine Busch (Boos)- and younger brothers- Pieter and Jacob. The family settled at Hunterstown, the southernmost Palatine camp in what is now Germantown. There his siblings Conradt and Anna Margareta were born. The family remained there until at least 1717.

Michael Wendell Pulver was naturalized in 1715.
In 1723, Wendell Pulver (Michael's father) pays 8 pounds 8 pence as a Rhinebeck taxpayer
Simon Kool (Cole) pays 5 pounds 5 pence
Jury Shaver (Shaffer) pays 5 pounds 5 pence

Michael Wendell Pulver is listed as a freeholder and paid taxes in Rhinebeck in 1733 and 1740 (as did his father Wendell).

Prior to 1734, he married ANNA CATHERINE MOHR (born 1711), daughter of Heinrich Matthias Mohr and Anna Margareta Stahl- also Palatine emigres. Heinrich Matthias Mohr was already living on Beekman land in 1717. His brother Philip Wilhelm Mohr likely built the "Philip Heinrich Mohr" house on River Road, north of the Barrytown four-corners.

Provost Marshal.

—The Red Hook Journal says that Mr. Henry W. Coon, of that town, had several sheep bitten by dogs on Tuesday evening last. The flock of sheep in their effort to escape from the dogs, ran up the railroad track just as the gravel train was coming down, and six of them were run over and killed by the cars.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Henry W. Coon died at his residence in Bay Head on Friday last. The Rhinebeck Gazette says, that morning he seemed as well as usual when he arose and dressed, partook of his breakfast with a hearty appetite, and had no warning of approaching dissolution until 10 o'clock. He only lived ten minutes after the attack.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips Coon, wife of the late Henry W. Coon of Red Hook, died after an illness of only a day at her home in that village Thursday morning at eight o'clock. Mrs. Coon was the mother of Elmer Coon and Mrs. William H. Thorn of this place. Her funeral will take place from her late residence in the town of Red Hook at ten o'clock this morning. The interment will be in the Lutheran cemetery in Red Hook village. She was a woman well known and well liked in the town in which she lived, and she will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Irving Coon, as executor of the estate of the late Henry W. Coon, will sell at auction at the farm occupied by him, about a mile and a half north-east of Upper Red Hook, Feb. 14th, at 10 a. m., 1 horse, 16 cows, 1 yoke oxen, 28 sheep, 3 calves, hogs, fowls, wagon, sleigh, harness, farming utensils, Hay, Straw, Oats, Buckwheat, Potatoes, and various other articles.

FAMILY TEMPERANCE PLEDGE

GOD BLESS OUR HOME

WHY SIGN THE PLEDGE BECAUSE

1. Moderate drinking tends to drunkenness, while total abstinence directly from it.

2. While no one means to become a drunkard, there is said to be over six hundred thousand confirmed drunkards in our country to-day.

3. Intoxicating drinks can do no good as a beverage, and there are always safer and surer remedies to use in case of sickness.

4. The idea of moderation is full of deceit, and our estimate of the power of our own will is usually a mistaken one.

5. The drinking habit is the cause of the larger portion of the misery, poverty and crime in our land.

6. Both science and experience prove that even moderate drinking is injurious to health.

BELIEVING IT TO BE BETTER FOR ALL

— WE, —

THE UNDERSIGNED SOLEMNLY PROMISE,

BY THE HELP OF GOD,

TO ABSTAIN FROM THE USE OF ALL INTOXICATING DRINKS AS A BEVERAGE.

WHY SIGN THE PLEDGE BECAUSE

7. Eternal interests are often for feited through drink, for the Bibl declares that no drunkard shall en ter heaven.

8. The Bible pronounces no bless ing upon drinking, but many up- on total abstinence.

9. It is easier to keep a pledge publicly, solemnly given than simple resolution.

10. The pledge protects us fro the solicitations of friends and re moves us from the temptations the saloon.

11. Persons miscalculate thei ability to drink in moderation, an become slaves to the drinking habi before they are aware of it.

12. Intemperance obstructs civil ization, education, religion an every useful reform.

VII. BRADFORD KENNETH SOUTHARD was from Nassau County, Long Island. He was unmarried when he purchased the farm from Alvin H. Coon in June 1923. His marriage license lists his occupation as "farmer" when he married Almire F. Waring on September 1, 1923. It is not clear why he sold the farm back to Coon in March of 1927, but the 1930 census has the Southards living in the Bronx, where he manages a restaurant.

ECHO VALLEY FARM SUMMER 1951

Our family was getting older and my law practice was improving to the point where it became possible to think about exchanging our village environment for a house at the farm. I had grown up on Echo Valley Farm, Red Hook, Dutchess County, New York. My parents had bought the 100 acre place in 1943 complete with dairy herd, farm implements, hired mand and family. We had moved in in the spring of 1943 and have owned it ever since.

In addition to the large white farmhouse, the farm includes a tremendous hay barn complex with basement milking parlor (now sheep pens) and a two part outbuilding we always called the "Carriage House" and "Tractor Barn." It was Father's calculated opinion the carriage house was the original dwelling unit on the farm. Its sill dimensions seemed to coincide precisely with the sill dimensions of the smaller part of the big house. He concluded the carriage house had, at one point, rested on the foundation upon which now sits the southwest portion of the farmhouse. He further theorized the movement of the carriage house contemporaneous with the building of the big house more than a century and a quarter ago. It was his feeling the carriage house was moved to form part of the barn yard to take its place amont the utilitarian buildings of the farm for the storage of tractors, spray rigs, and other farm equipment.

So it served from whenever in the 19th Century it was moved, until the spring of 1977. All good things had caught up with us and wife Elizabeth (Tibbie) and I decided renovation of our gigantic church in the nearby Village of Tivoli, although fun and challenging, was not the way we wanted to live. The church (circa 1852) was lovely, but our three children needed the farm, the trout streat, a horse. They needed to work with the soil, hunt woodchucks, and turn back the clock to a more rural, natural environment. So, we schemed and plotted the change.

My family gifted us with three acres across the meadow from the farmhouse. We decided the carriage house should live again as a dwelling on Echo Valley Farm. Having made the decision, the next step was the design. A good f-iend and client, Phillip Seymour, was the most successful contractor in the area. I knew him to be honest, innovative and committed to the builders art. He and we spent hours together in the late winter of 1977 getting an idea of what would happen if we were to re-cycle the carriage house.

We measured the structure, inspected the beams, considered the re-use of flooring and siding. We planned, laid out mock floor plans on our own living room floor, and worried about the cost. Our goal was to use as much of the existing structure as we could. Eventually, for energy efficiency and efficiency in general, we re-cycled in our new house only the beams of the carriage house/tractor barn. The rest of the material was used again in other ways and in other buildings on the farm.

The carriage house/tractor barn were, in actuality, two separate and distinct buildings. The northern portion (carriage) was that which apparently had served as a dwelling. The southern portion (tractor) had apparently been tacked on later. The interiors were most dissimilar. The northern portion consisted of rough hewn posts supporting finished ceiling beams with unique beaded edges. In addition there were the remains of smooth plastar walls, the remnants of mud and wattle insulation, a mantel piece, partial wainscotting and door jamb, and paint. As a matter of fact, the ceiling pattern of the carriage house later emerged complete with proper dimension for and layout of a stairwell.

To the contrary, the tractor barn portion of the building included hand hewn posts supporting hand hewn, unfinished beams. There was absolutely no indication that structure had ever been anything more than a shed.

We decided the northern portion, the original farm dwelling if one accepts the premise, would be re-used exactly as it existed and would serve as our living room/dining area. In essence, the design of our new house was thus confined since we had to build in relation to the existing dimensions of the carriage house in order to use the ceiling beams. The tractor barn portion could be enlarged or shrunk without problem.

Easter 1977, with pry bars, brothers, tractor with bucket, a couple of hired boys, and assorted friends, we had a barn razing. Orders were to preserve everything, up to and including the hand made nails. Siding came down as carefully as possible, to be re-used in a planned pole barn. Flooring, where there was same, was carefully lifted from the underlying beams. The tin roof and roof boards came down to be re-cycled in another structure.

Wihtout injury to person or property, we had the barn on the ground in two and a half days. All the beams and posts had been marked and diagrammed for re-assembly. The site was then raked for historic artifacts (none found), and Seymour was ready to proceed with the re-creation of the space, using as much as we deemed wise and efficient of the old building materials.

Trouble by the prospect of dormers on a rectangular building (one of the designs we contemplated), we consulted a local architect friend. He suggested orienting the southern part of the new home on an east-west axis with southern exposure, and gable ends. This was to be the carriage house, re-created with beamed downstairs ceilings. He then suggested forming a T to the north with a northern gable end and the southern portion of the roof tying into the ridgeline of the southern structure. This solved the problem of dormers and gave each child a lofty cathedral ceilinged bedroom.

Phil felt the use of the beams, rather than modern materials would be balanced out in the cost because we owned the beams. Had we not owned them, they would have been (a) impossible to find and (b) prohibitively expensive.

In constructing the house, the interior downstairs framing was done with conventional pre-cut eight foot one inch studs. To get the height necessitated by use of the antique beaded beams, each beam was shimmed to a uniform height above the plate, the result was an eight foot eight inch height from floor to ceiling. This added a feeling of additional spaciousness and gave a feeling of a somewhat larger room. In order to further expand the building potential, the foundation was laid twelve blocks high, rather than the standard eleven. It is our intention to eventually use a large portion of the basement for the children.

In an effort to conserve energy and make the house as tight as possible, Phil created a wall composed of, from inside out: ½ inch sheetrock; 3½ inches of fibreglass insulation; 1 inch tongue and groove styrofoam insulation panels. The styrofoam was tongued and grooved on all four sides, thus each section fit snugly into its neighbor. The most important result of this type of construction is its impact on the wind. As we all know, especia-ly those of us who have grown up in older homes, wind penetration will chill a dwelling as quickly as turning off the burner, even more quickly. OUr house was sheathed from top to bottom in the styrofoam, in fact, it continues two feet below the level of the ground. Since it is styrofoam, it is impervious to moisture and almost every other assault of Mother Nature. The way our exterior walls were constructed resulted in a factor of R-11 for the 3½ inches of fibreglass, and R-5.41 for the sheathing.

Over the styrofoam we applied Masonite "Woodsman", the basic well-known hardboard product with an imitation weathered wood face. The embossed rough clear texture gives a natural appearance, and when painted with Olympic Overcoat, the effect is indistinguishable from the look of the century old large red barn standing some four hundred feet away across the meadow.

We shingled the dwelling with Johns Manvill "Tiberline", a very expensive roofing material suggested not only for its antique appearance, but also for its life expectancy.

Andersen perma shield narrowline windows were selected for the house, then, to further improve the insulating qualities, we added aluminum storms on the same unit. The result was triple glazing, more effectively cutting wind penetration. This particular Andersen unit parallels the old-fashioned flush wood storm windown unit, with more than equal efficiency. Since one has no control over the cost of fuels, the best answer is reducing the need for it.

_In order to further maximize the efficiency of the house, we kept the northern exposure to a minimum, ending with three windows on the north, five on the west, and a similar number on the east. At the same time we maximized our southern expsoure by the installation of atwo eight foot sliding glass doors which open on our re-cycled patio, ore on that in a bit.

We have found, half way through our first winter, the heat from the sun low in the southern sky heats the main living part of the house to a uniform 70 degrees on sunny days, in the high 60s on cloudy ones. The roof on the southern exposure is pitched at 45 degrees and is waiting the installation of solar collectors for our hot water needs. This whole system has yet to be developed, but the space is available on the 20 by 30 foot roof, as well as between the interior knee wall and the exterior wall. That three foot space will be used for plumbing.

As far as the hearing system is concerned, we have a double team, one oil burner and one Riteway wood furnace. The system is automatically zoned with two separate thermostats, one in the upstairs hall, one downstairs. We chose hot air for when the solar heat warms the house, the oil burner is not needed. When it is subzero and dark, if the wood and fireplace warmth is not sufficient, the oil burner quickly raises the interior temperature.

With half the winter gone, we have burned about four cords of wood and about one hundred fifty dollars worth of oil. Last year we burned no wood in our church home and consumed some seven hundred dollars worth of black gold. The farm requires constant maintenance of the woodlots, so the wood we burn is readily available.

Phil Seymour suggested and installed a ridge vent for both sections of the house, coupled with continuous soffitt vents which provide more positive air circulation above the insulation. In the summer, the vents allow escape of hot air. In the winter, the vents allow the air to keep moving. If it stagnated, it would settle into the insulation and further reduce the effectiveness of the house.

Oh, the re-cycled patio. Years ago I worked as a lifeguard at the only olympic sized pool in the area, if not the county. Years passed, Community Service Society of New York, which owned the poool and grounds, eased out of its operation in Red Hook. Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation bought the property for eventual use as a plant site.

The pool which served the people who were summer visitors as part of the Community Service Society programs, was surrounded by a flagstone patio. The stones, weighing well into the hundreds of pounds each and measuring two feet by four feet, four by four, and bigger, were laid in sand.

I offered to purchase the stones from Central Hudson in the Spring of 1977. Surprisingly the offer was accepted and for one hundred dollars I owned them all. By the time my friends and I had moved the stones, we discovered we had almost 75 of them. They popped right out of the sand, were loaded on Phil's flatbed trailer, and transported to the farm. Some were 4 to 6 inches thick, none were under two inches thick. All are priceless for they are not quarried in that way around here any more than I know of. One old-timer told me they were the pre-WPA sidewalks of Tivoli, New York, our village. In any event, the stones I trod for three years as a life guard now repose on the southern side of the house. Hopefully, they will be there for centuries.

In retrospect, we would have done nothing different. We have had a fall and winter experience in the house which has been wondrous. There is a special feeling, when the winds howl and the snow blows, knowing the cellar is stocked with wood, the candles don't flicker in the draft, for there is none, and the house is tight and warm. The kids love it, the horse loves the farm, as do dogs and sheep. All is right at Echo Valley Farm.

Research can become confusing as you can see by this picture below. I held up the Vosburgh home pictures and then this picture, which appear to be identical. But this one I'd already identified on another sheet as the home of my great great grandfather Conn's - therefore the house in which my great grandfather grew up in. Those many years later, we know. The other two pictures however, Grampa pointed out as his fathers original home before the family moved next door to a house - the cows in front of the barn.

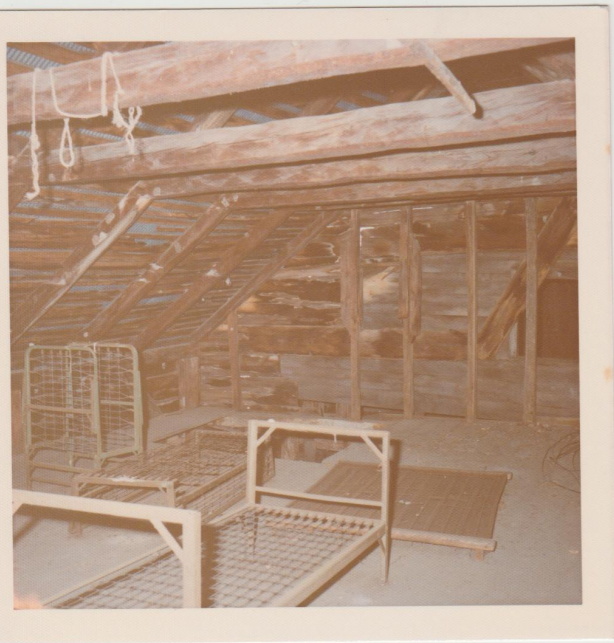

"Hey, Grampa, we could use you now!"

99.9% sure this is EVF based on comparison to 1970s photos of barns and 2017 photos of house

Echo Valley Farm, so named for the effect created by yelling children, has been in the Klose family for nearly 75 years. With great respect and affection, I turn this volume over to them to add their stories and histories.
