Administrative Information

Biographical Sketch	Louis Rosenblum was born on November 15, 1923, in Brooklyn, New York, the son of paper-dealer Julius Rosenblum and Marion Sandler. He attended the Yeshivah of Flatbush and Brooklyn College. From 1943 to 1946, during World War II, he served with the U.S. Army Infantry in the Pacific Theater. During that time, he fought in the Battle of Okinawa and received a Bronze Star. He returned to Brooklyn College after the war and graduated in 1948 with a B.S. in chemistry. He then went to Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio, where he graduated with a Ph.D. in organic chemistry in 1952. In that year, he began working as a research scientist and technical manager at the NASA Lewis Research Center in Cleveland, Ohio. He was appointed Chief of the Direct Energy Conversion Division in 1969, Chief of the Solar and Electrochemistry Division in 1977, and to the Federal Senior Executive Service in 1979. He retired from NASA in 1981, and from 1982 to 1983 he worked as a private consultant in photovoltaic and renewable energy systems. In 1963, Rosenblum was a founder of the Cleveland Committee on Soviet Anti-Semitism, the first major American organization dedicated to the Soviet Jewry movement. It was renamed the Cleveland Council on Soviet Anti-Semitism (CCSA) in 1965, and he later became its executive director. In 1970, the CCSA was one of the founding organizations of the Union of Councils for Soviet Jews (UCSJ), of which he served as president from 1970 to 1973. He was active with the Soviet Jewry movement for fifteen years, during which time he helped collect information about Soviet Jewry, published resources and educational material, organized other Soviet Jewry organizations in other American and Canadian cities, and developed major nationwide campaigns like calling Soviet Jews directly and sending them holiday cards. Rosenblum was a founder and president of Beth Israel-The West Temple. He also volunteered for the Jewish History division of the Western Reserve Historical Society as an archival processor. In 1949, he married Evelyn Janice Mull of Cleveland. They had four children: Janet, Miriam, Diane, and Daniel. He moved to Wellesley, Massachusetts in 2013. He died there on April 4, 2019.
