

A984.14

Eva L. Shepherd
Composition
March 4th 1881.

Castle Building.

If people could not build castles in the air, I do not know how they would manage to pass away many a lonely hour. There are a hundred things, which in reality we can not have, but ~~we~~ we can imagine we have, ~~that~~ and that does us some good. Even little children build air castles, for you can often hear them say what they intend to do when they grow to be men and women. They plan many things which when they are grown they would never think of doing. School girls are very fond of castle building. I guess there never was a girl yet who did not or has not, planned out her future life - and that is particularly

The case with girls at a boarding invisible structure school. It is not an uncommon thing there for fifteen or twenty girls to get in one room and there tell what they intend to do when they leave school. They have many a plan as to what they will do when home; and then when they are home they are continually building castles in the air about their future life.

I have often built air castles about the things I would do if I had all the money I wanted. I think of how I would travel all over Europe, and the East, and how and where I would live when through with traveling; and of many other improbable things. I do not think there is ever a day goes by but what every one ~~builds more or less~~ ~~air castles~~ plans one or more of these