

P.S. While I eat breakfast!
Yes - John Shepherd was Eva Lee Gunnis father - also Ed Shepherds - The Shepherd ranch was a beautiful place. and the tall Lombardy trees were a land mark for miles around - then came "The City" and as every thing else in the valley - ruin - The Nadeau road turned right off the road out of Mojave about 3 miles north of Coyote Holes - before reaching Indian Wells - then straight across the valley, so - west to no. east to foot of grade - before it was built - to mouth of Mt. Spring Canyon. No - the Wells Fargo did not follow this route to Panamint City the Shepherds Canyon toll road was not completed until just before the death of Panamint City - The road to there came into P. Valley east of what is now the State Range the Valley at the southern end narrows & comes out further on east of Mead's Lake and was the first route in to P. City And if Lehman held up the stage at Mt.

Spring Canyon - Tennessee Springs is 20 miles north & above and beyond the Junction, and if he was been skirting Grapevine Canyon - then he was 20 miles west - as it is in the Sierra above Little Lake - these tales were all added to at each telling! and credit was taken by some just to exact? their standing? I'm harrying - "Gasp her light" Elm.
