Dear Friend:

I hope by this time life has gotten back for you to float its easier, and, as one generally considers it, pleasing habits without interruption and disturbance of old ingrown habits. I suppose it's nice putting it down this way but in reality have I come to a point questioning if all this good is in fact the best ^{as} for everlasting continuity. Life is by nature a straggle and sickness and strife may as we regain health and power well help us to increased understanding at least, of ourselves. While forwarding this thought, that possibly new lights are coming to our minds ^{when in distress,} do I by no means infer its power to remove all dilemmas. Only mean that new aspects to our minds will let us see things deeper.

I was in Kalmar yesterday for new examination of my ears. Operation was not possible as the nerve were damaged. He thought possible though that hearingaid might help. Supposedly it would require special construction and I have to wait for definite say so. Next examination will be in February.

Signe suffers from a bad heart and arthritis. She is well enough to be up and around. Outside of what mentioned is everything O. K.

Suppose by now you have seen Martha's traveling pictures. How did you like them?

Am also sending you some pictures of our home at Masphere. 2 of them are from Sweden summer home on Åland.

You, Ebba and all concerning you are all wished Merry X-mas and A Happy New Year.

From Signe & Eric.
