Blanche Thebom

MEZZO-SOPRANO

"BLANCHE THEBOM threw Manhattan's music critics into fits of excitement," wrote TIME Magazine of her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House last December. Her "strikingly handsome" person, her "exceptional vocal endowments," her "beautiful and mobile countenance" won ringing acclaim, and led Herald-Tribune critic Jerome Bohm to declare: "This writer in sixteen seasons has never encountered so remarkable a first appearance on the Metropolitan's stage." Thus at twenty-five, this beautiful girl from Ohio begins her fifth concert season under the aegis, "S. Hurok Presents," a glowing luminary of the concert and opera stage.
